Talmadge Says He Did Change Bell's Order

Original Commission Was in Error, Governor Insists.

Charges of "fraud" hurled at Governor Talmadge by Miller R. Bell, of Milledgeville, ousted member of the State Board of Regents, yesterday drew from the Governor an admission that he changed the executive order appointing Bell "to make it comply with the law."

Asked if he had any comment on a statement issued by Bell, the Governor said all he had done was in compliance with the law and that Bell's charges were only a smoke screen to obscure the real issue on which the demand that the contracts of two Georgia educators be renewed was based. Bell claimed the original order listed the appointment as expiring July 1, 1947. The Governor said this was an error and that as soon as it was called to his attention, he ordered it be changed to read July 1, 1941.

Bell was rejected from the Board of Regents when he attempted to take his seat last Monday and his successor, Judge Joe Ben Jackson, of Gray, was recognized. Bell said he had not made up his mind as to whether he would attempt reinstatement by court action.

Governor Talmadge said he recognized the General Education Board has broken off relations with the University of Georgia, causing that institution to lose $25,000 for the current fiscal year. Speaking of the philanthropic organizations, the Governor added:

"If any of them got insulted by our efforts to stop the co-mingling of the races, they were parties to it. And if they were parties to it, we don't want to be tickled of their money. The University makes enough out of fees to support itself."

Information Refused. A Constitution reporter asked for some information about the current withholding of federal funds for the state's social security program. Talmadge declined comment, giving as one reason that if he did "the local papers will smear it up anyhow."

"They will try to get me in trouble, or rather keep me in trouble. They (The Constitution and the Journal) ain't going to stop any old-age pensions and they ain't going to put any Negroes in white schools."

On his desk the Governor had several New York newspapers. He commented there for giving an accurate account of the hearing even though they censured him in their editorials.

Although both Atlanta newspapers declined immediate comment, the Macon News, through Managing News Editor Frank Hawkins, stated:

"We feel highly complimented. I would like to point out that so far we haven't had to resort to any record falsifying."

Text of Marion Smith's address, delivered yesterday at the Atlanta Rotary Club meeting, follows in full: Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen of the Rotary Club:

Your program committee was very kind in extending me the invitation to be your guest today and to say something to you about the events that are taking place affecting educational interests in Georgia. This is the second time that you have been good enough to ask me to talk to you about educational affairs. About two years ago, at a time when I was chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of Georgia, you gave me the privilege of telling you something about the work of that board; about what the University System had accomplished, and hoped to accomplish for the people of this state. I shall not today repeat in detail what I said at that time. It is, however, necessary that I say something about what the Board of Regents was intended to do and what up until very lately it has been because unless you understand and recall these things you cannot appreciate the full and tragic significance of what has been happening in Georgia the last few weeks.

In the administration of Governor Russell in 1931, a law was passed in Georgia known as the reorganization act. One part of that law provided for uniting all institutions of higher education in Georgia into one system, and provided that that system should be governed as a whole by one board to be known as the Board of Regents. That law, and the reorganization of the system of higher education which was made under the law, has accomplished more for Georgia than any other thing that has been done in your lifetime or mine. I wish very briefly to remind you of what has been accomplished and then to tell you why I think such results were possible.

LACK OF CO-ORDINATION REMEDIED BY BOARD When the board was organized there were 23 colleges operating in Georgia as parts of the University System, each under its separate board of trustees, and with no co-ordination of their work and no co-operation. Out of this entire list of 23 colleges only four were accredited by the standard accrediting agencies of the country—that is to say, in only four of them were the degrees and credits recognized by other standard institutions throughout the nation.

After one year of study the board reorganized the system. Seven institutions were discontinued entirely; three others were changed from senior colleges to junior colleges; and a number of major transfers were made of the functions of one institution to another. The result was that we had today a unified system rather than a mass of unrelated and inefficient schools.

Today there is not an institution in the University System which is not accredited, and the work of which is not recognized everywhere. I must add, however, that anyone familiar with educational matters knows that if the course which has recently been started by the Governor of Georgia is not checked the accredited rating of every one of these institutions is imperiled, just as Huey Long caused Louisiana State University to lose its accredited standing, and as Bilbo brought the same disaster to the University of Mississippi.

MANAGEMENT PRAISED BY ROTARIANS The report of the economy committee which studied all branches of the Georgia government gave the highest praise to the management of these institutions by the Board of Regents. Time does not permit that I go into detail. Let me simply give you one striking charge: When the board took over these various institutions which had recently been started by the state treasury. Since that time the board has in no year received anything like that amount of money. In some years they have received only a little in excess of a million dollars from the state treasury for operating purposes. While the revenue coming from the state has steadily decreased, the attendance at the institutions has steadily increased.

Today the University System is educating more than twice as many students as were handled in the institutions of higher education before the board was formed. It is receiving from the state only about three-fourths as much money as was paid before the board was formed. That is to say—it is handling twice as many students at a cost to the state much less than was being expended before the board was formed. This, however, is not the full financial story. I should add that when the Board of Regents took charge they found the institutions indebted for unpaid bills in the amount of nearly a million dollars; all of which have been paid, and there is no floating indebtedness at the present time.

During the fiscal year ending June 30 the office made purchases totaling $11,958,195.17. Of this sum $7,672,145.58 was for the highway department, $1,579,876.79 for the University System, $1,412,438.98 for the public welfare department and $1,353,733.82 for other agencies.

Talmadge Errs In Quoting Bard The literary minds yesterday accused Governor Talmadge of being slightly cloudy on his Shakespearean quotations.

In a statement to the press Sunday the Governor said the newspapers were belying the issues surrounding the ouster of Dr. Walter D. Cocking and Dr. Marvin Pittman and added that he reminded him of a quotation from Shakespeare: "Oh what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive."

The literati questioned the chief executive and went scurrying to the records. They found that the quotation comes from Hamlet, act 3, scene 2, of Sir Walter Scott's "Marmion."

Highlights of Marion Smith's Speech Before Rotary Club

Here are some of the highlights of Marion Smith's forthright speech yesterday before the Atlanta Rotary Club:

"Briefly stated, the independence of the Board of Regents has been destroyed. It has not been simply weakened. It has been totally and utterly destroyed."

"I know something about the persistent desire of Governor Rivers and Governor Talmadge to interfere constantly in the management of the University System and to use it for political purposes."

"I need not waste your time telling you in detail that the charges against these two men (Dr. Walter D. Cocking and Dr. Marvin S. Pittman) were false and ridiculous."

"No one but an idiot, with the facts before him, would have believed anything of the kind." (Referring to the charges against Dr. Cocking and Dr. Pittman).

"I have nothing but contempt for the politician, who, to advance his own selfish interest, seeks to disturb race relations in the south; seeks to charge kindly relations into hatred by spreading statements which he himself must know to be false."

"I suppose it is unnecessary for me to say to you that the men who composed the Board of Regents when obtaining these funds ($377,000 from the General Education Board, Rosenwald Fund, American Church Institute and Carnegie Foundation), did not make any commitments to educate white and Negroes in the same schools, or do anything else about race relationships that would be offensive to our southern ideas."

start probably the strongest and most independent board that has ever been created in Georgia. Great pressure has always been brought upon his successors to try to maintain this standard of independence. I know something about it because I have frequently been a part of that effort. It has been hard enough work with his two successors, but to a substantial extent these efforts have succeeded, until we come to the "tragic era."

The other reason has been that the law so constituted the board that it was hoped it could be kept free from domination by any one Governor. This was accomplished by providing that all members of the board should hold for six years except one, who should hold at the pleasure of the Governor. These six-year terms were staggered in the belief that there would never be an opportunity for any one Governor to appoint a majority of the board. That has been largely the case until a series of unexpected vacancies this year has delivered the control of the board to the Governor and reducing it to the status of a dishonorable rubber stamp.

ONLY MAN FIRED BY TWO GOVERNORS I know something about the persistent desire of Governor Rivers and of Governor Talmadge to interfere constantly in the management of the University System and to use it for political purposes. My knowledge grows in part out of the fact that it was my misfortune under both of them to hold the one position on the board that was at the pleasure of the Governor rather than for a fixed term. As a result of this I have the unique distinction of being the only man who was ever fired by two Governors from the Board of Regents. The fundamental cause of my being fired by both Governors was the same—I would not acquiesce in the Governor's interference with the management of the state's institutions of higher education for the purpose of rewarding political friends or carrying out political purposes. On that point I was not willing to yield and my stand brought me into constant opposition with both Governor Rivers and Governor Talmadge.

And I come to this sad condition that exists today. Let us, gentlemen, face that condition squarely. Let us understand what it means to all of us in Georgia, then each one of you can make up his mind as to what he will do about it.

Briefly stated, the independence of the board has been destroyed. It has not been simply weakened. It has been totally and completely destroyed. Except for the ability of a minority to protest from time to time the board might as well be abolished during the rest of the Governor's term and he simply be furnished with a rubber stamp bearing the words, "Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia." Such a stamp would have just as much independence as the present board and would be just as valuable to the state, except always for the minority who have the courage to protest and to fight.

I shall not weary you with repeating the details of the disgraceful occurrences which took place last Monday at the State Capitol. A broad outline should be recalled: Two distinguished Georgia educators, men of character, integrity and nationally known ability, one of them, by the way, the son of a Confederate veteran, were marked for destruction by the Governor. I am not sure just why he determined on this course. It is, of course, true of all dictators, and we have a minor one in Georgia, that they go into a frenzy whenever they are crossed, and will work any amount of destruction to have their way. It is, of course, true of such men that one of their chief objectives always is to dominate the educational systems under their control and use them for their political purposes. This was true of Huey Long in Louisiana; it was true of Bilbo when he was governor of Mississippi; it is true on a world-wide scale of Adolf Hitler; and it is equally true of Governor Talmadge in Georgia.

CHARGES FALSE AND RIDICULOUS When he could not have his way with the board as it existed he forced three men out, and by these three appointments gained control of the board.

I need not waste your time telling you in detail that the charges against these two men were false and ridiculous. You have, of course, read the papers and no man of intelligence would believe the filthy nonsense that was stated at this so-called trial. It was not believed by the Governor, and it was not believed by the majority of the board, who voted under his orders. I know they did not believe it, because while these men certainly lack character they are certainly not idiots, and not one but an idiot, with the facts before him, would have believed anything of the kind.

You, of course, know that the verdict was made, at a secret caucus at the Governor's mansion the night before the trial began; a written schedule was prepared for the floor leader of the Governor's forces to follow, and was followed. The slightest pretense of a fair trial was abandoned, when at the close of the trial Regent Robert drew from his pocket a typewritten resolution, prepared before the trial began, reciting in effect that the two men had been found guilty—that is, the verdict was written before the trial commenced. Georgia's shame is complete.

We should pause and pay tribute to those members of the board who had the character, integrity and patriotism to stand and fight against this outrage. Their names should always be remembered in Georgia.

AS MUCH PITY AS CONTEMPT As for the majority of the board who carried out the Governor's orders, those who acted, to quote an Atlanta newspaper, "as the Governor's trained seals," I have as much pity as contempt. Imagine, gentlemen, what these men must think about themselves today. I do not suppose the Governor is suffering any pangs of conscience. He may possibly be disturbed by some doubts as to the political wisdom of what he has done, but I am sure his conscience is not troubling him. Such a thing as having his own way, through political trickery, and if necessary, calling in the National Guard, is an old story with him. If his conscience ever bothered him it has long since become hardened.

But these men who constituted a majority of the board were going through a new experience. They must realize now the utterly contemptible position in which they placed themselves. They must realize the disgust which all decent people feel for the course they pursued. It may very well be that with some of them at least they are paying a price today far too great for any reward that they are given or promised. I do not, of course, know how they feel, but I do know that I would give my right arm gladly rather than swap places with any one of them.

The tragic fact that you must face, because all Georgians must face it, is not simply that two distinguished educators have been brutally mistreated, and that our state is held up to scorn throughout the nation; there is something even worse than this in the situation, and that is that the independence of the Board of Regents has been destroyed.

The progress that the University system has made has been the brightest spot in Georgia history in the past nine years. That progress has been solely because of the independence of the Board of Regents. With that independence destroyed; with the board reduced to the position of a political dummy; you can feel perfectly certain that the decline will be more rapid than the rise. There will be those who will struggle against this. There are many devoted men in the University system who, under the leadership of the chancellor, will struggle to salvage what they can out of the wreck. Their efforts may delay things to some extent, but in the long run nothing can save this situation unless we can restore to the Board of Regents the independence which the law intends them to have.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE "PRICE OF DECENCY" How can this be done? There is a way. Under our system of government every temporary dictator must come back to the people at stated periods to be voted on again. If we can send to the Governor's office a man of integrity, character and patriotism, we can restore to our system of government the independence which the law intends them to have.

If we are to get a man of that character in Governor's office, then like you must take part of the burden of accomplishing his election. If we do not succeed in bringing back character and patriotism into the Governor's office, such as this state formerly had; if we are to let our state go on for the same sort of thing as the last eight years, then God help the University System and the state of Georgia.

Therefore, gentlemen, be on your guard. Remember that eternal vigilance is the price not only of liberty but of decency in government as well.

Roosevelt Text Asking Extended Service

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on extending military service for selectees, National Guardsmen and reservists follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

Last year the Congress of the United States, recognizing the gravity of the world situation, held that common prudence required that American defense, at that time relatively weak, be strengthened in its two aspects. The first called for the production of munitions of all kinds, the second called for the training and service of personnel. The selective training and service act authorized the annual induction into military service of a maximum of 900,000 men for this training and service, of whom 600,000 are now in the Army. The Congress also authorized the induction into service of the National Guard, the reserve officers, and other reserve components of the Army of the United States.

In the absence of further action by the Congress, all of those involved must be released from active service on the expiration of 12 months. This means that beginning this autumn about two-thirds of the Army of the United States will begin a demobilization.

The action taken last year was appropriate to the international situation at that time. It took into consideration the small size and the undeveloped state of our armed forces. The National Guard, which then formed the bulk of these forces, had to be seasoned; its technical training and general efficiency greatly improved. The ranks of the National Guard and the regular Army had to be brought to full strength; and, in addition, the Army required for its tremendous expansion the services of approximately 50,000 reserve officers.

TWO STEPS TAKEN

FOR NATIONAL SECURITY

In effect, two steps were taken for the security of the nation. First, the selective service act initiated annual military training as a prime duty of citizenship. Second, the organization and training of field armies was begun—training in teamwork—by company, by battalion, by regiment, and by division. The objective was to have ready at short notice an organized and integrated personnel of over 1,000,000 men.

I need scarcely emphasize the fact that if and when an organized and integrated company, battalion, regiment or division is compelled to send two-thirds of its members home, those who return to civil life, if called to the colors later on, would have to go through a new period of organization and integration before the new unit to which they were assigned could be depended on for service. The risks and the weaknesses caused by dissolving a trained Army in times of national peril were pointed out by George Washington over and over again in his messages to the Continental Congress.

Salient Statements From F.D.R. Special Message to Congress

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Salient statements from President Roosevelt's message to Congress:

If two-thirds of our present Army return to civilian life, it will be almost a year before the effective Army strength again reaches one million men.

We would be taking a grave national risk unless the Congress were to make it possible for us to maintain our present full effective strength.

We Americans cannot afford to speculate with the security of America.

Let us consolidate the whole of our defense—the whole of our preparations against attack by those enemies of democracy who are the enemies of all that we hold dear.

It is, therefore, obvious that if two-thirds of our present Army return to civilian life, it will be almost a year before the effective Army strength again reaches one million men.

Today it is imperative that I should officially report to the Congress what the Congress undoubtedly knows: That the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago. It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the Army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness. Small as it is in comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration.

GRAVE RISK UNLESS CONGRESS ACTS

Therefore, we would be taking a grave national risk unless the Congress were to make it possible for us to maintain our present full effective strength and during the coming year give training to as many additional Americans as we can, when immediate readiness for service becomes more and more a vital precautionary measure, the elimination of approximately two-thirds of our trained soldiers, and about three-fourths of the total officer personnel, would be a tragic error.

Occasional individuals, basing their opinions on unsupported evidence or on no evidence at all, may with honest intent assert that the United States need fear no attack on its own territory or on the other nations or this Hemisphere by aggressors from without.

Nevertheless, it is the well-nigh unanimous opinion of those who are daily cognizant, as military and naval officers and as government servants in the field of international relations, that schemes and plans of aggressor nations against American security are so evident that the United States and the rest of the Americas are definitely imperiled in their national interests. That is why reluctantly and only after a careful weighing of all facts and all events, I recently proclaimed that an unlimited national emergency exists.

It is not surprising that millions of patriotic Americans find it difficult in the pursuit of their daily occupations and in the normal lives of their families to give constant thought to the implications of happenings many thousands of miles away. It is hard for most of us to bring such events into focus with our own readily accepted and normal democratic ways of living.

GERMANS FOLLOW SEQUENCE OF CONQUESTS.

That is why I must refer again to the sequence of conquests—German conquests in Europe—which have continued uninterrupted throughout several years—all the way from the coup against Austria to the present campaign against Russia.

Every move up and down and across Europe, and into Asia, and into Africa has been conducted according to a time schedule utilizing in every case an overwhelming superiority not only in materiel but in trained men as well. Each campaign has been based on a preliminary assurance of safety or non-aggression to the intended victim. Each campaign has been based on disarming fear and gaining time until the German government was fully ready to throw treaties and pacts to the winds and simultaneously to launch an attack in overwhelming force.

Each elimination of a victim has brought the issue of Nazi domination closer to this Hemisphere, while month by month their intrigues of propaganda and conspiracy have sought to weaken every link in the community of interests that should bind the Americas into a great western family.

I do not think that any branch of the government of the United States will be willing to let America risk the fate which has destroyed the independence of other nations.

We Americans cannot afford to speculate with the security of America.

Furthermore, we have a definite responsibility to every country in the Western Hemisphere—to aid each other and every one of them against attack from without the Hemisphere. I do not believe that any branch of the American government would desire today to abrogate our Pan-American pacts or to discard a policy which we have maintained for nearly a century and a quarter.

If we do not reverse this historic policy, then it is our duty to maintain it. To weaken our Army at this particular time would be, in my judgment, an act of bad faith toward our neighbors.

I realize that personal sacrifices are involved in extending the period of service for selectees, the National Guard and other reserve components of our Army. I believe that provision now can and will be made in such an extension to relieve individual cases of undue hardship, and also to relieve older men who should, in justice, be allowed to resume their civilian occupations as quickly as their services can be spared.

DISASTROUS EFFECT OF ARMY MELTING.

Nevertheless, I am confident that the men in the ranks of the Army realize far better than does the general public, the disastrous effect which would result including those of guardsmen and reserve officers, until six months after the termination of the unlimited national emergency which the President already has declared.

At the same time, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, of the Senate Military Committee, introduced legislation which would provide a declaration of national emergency but restrict the President's authority under it to the mere retaining in service of selectees and guardsmen. Thomas' resolution also would permit selectees to waive the restriction against sending them outside the western Hemisphere.

Mr. Roosevelt remarked in his message that he was "not asking the Congress for specific language in a specific bill."

"But I can say frankly," he continued, "that I hope the Congress will acknowledge this national emergency either for a specific period or until revocation by the Congress or the President."

Under the law, the men could be kept in service if Congress declared an emergency. Some legislators earlier had expressed apprehension that such a declaration might amount in effect to a form of declaration of war, but that question was not stressed in the initial reaction today to the President's message.

Congressmen generally seemed chiefly concerned with the merits of the proposal to keep the selectees in service. Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, expressed "doubts about its fairness." Senator Johnson, Republican, California, disagreed with the entire message and Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, demanded the details on "what's threatening us, if anything."

Administration senators endorsed the proposal with Senator Overton, Democrat, Louisiana, predicting passage of the legislation.

Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, commented that the President "speaks with a knowledge of the world situation and our own situation which he alone can possess" and predicted that Congress would "respond to the recommendation in a manner required by the interests of our country."

Senator Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, charged that "it would be bad faith with the trainees, their parents and their wives if we fail to release them; they were specifically suit from permitting the present Army, only now approaching an acceptable state of efficiency, to melt away and set us back at least six months while new units are being reconstituted from the bottom up and from the top down with new drafts of officers and men.

The legislation of last year provided definitely that if national danger later existed, the one year period of training could be extended by action of the Congress.

I do not believe that the danger to American safety is less than it was one year ago when, so far as the Army was concerned, the United States was in a woefully weak position. I do not believe that the danger to our national safety is about the same as it was a year ago.

I do believe—I know—that the danger today is infinitely greater. I do believe—I know—that in all truth we are in the midst of a national emergency.

I am not asking the Congress for specific language in a specific bill. But I can say frankly that I hope the Congress will acknowledge this national emergency either for a specific period or until revocation by the Congress or the President.

The objective is, of course, the all important issue. It is to authorize continuance in service of selectees, National Guard and reserve components of the Army and the retired personnel of the Regular Army, with the understanding that, should the exigencies of the situation permit, early return to civil pursuits will follow in due course.

Because of the swiftness of modern events, I think the Congress should also remove the restrictions in regard to the numbers of selectees inducted each year for training and service.

INDIVIDUAL HARDSHIPS WILL BE REDUCED

And, in order to reduce individual hardships to a minimum, I urge that the Congress provide that employers be asked to continue to keep jobs open for their employees who have been held in the Army. For my part I will direct the return to civil life of officers and men whose retention on active duty would impose undue hardship and that selectees and enlisted men of the National Guard, who have reached the age of 28, be transferred from active service to a reserve component as rapidly as possible.

At great cost to the nation, and at increasing dislocation of private buying, we are accepting the material burdens necessary for our security. In such matters we accept the fact of a crisis in our history.

It is true that in modern war men without machines are of little value. It is equally true that machines without men are of no value at all. Let us consolidate the whole of our defense—the whole of our preparation against attack by those enemies of democracy who are the enemies of all that we hold dear.

One final word: Time counts. Within two months disintegration, which would flow failure to take congressional action, will commence in the armies of the United States. The time counts. The responsibility rests solely with the Congress.

Peach Crop Consumption Gets U. S. Help

Surplus Marketing Agency To Join in Move To Push Fruit.

Plans for a public-spirited cooperative effort to increase the consumption of fresh peaches during the period of July 24 through July 30 were announced yesterday by Lawrence A. Wagner, area supervisor of the Surplus Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

He stated that the Georgia Association of Peach Growers, the South Carolina Peach Growers Association and the North Carolina Mutual Peach Growers Society, who have combined marketing efforts through the Georgia-Carolina Peach Marketing Board, are among the co-operating growers' organizations. The Food Trades Industry are also co-operating with the United States Department of Agriculture in this effort to increase the home consumption of fresh peaches and make the best possible use of our abundant peach crop.

"Fresh peaches in season are one of the most popular fruits on the American market," Wagner said. "This year's crop is believed to be the finest and largest in many years. Fresh peaches are one of the important protective foods listed as a 'blue stamp item' by the secretary of agriculture. It is the aim of the Surplus Marketing Administration to aid the growers, consumers and industry of America by encouraging increased consumption of these needed commodities."

He added that this co-operative educational campaign will augment the food stamp plan under which fresh peaches and other basic health-protecting foods are available to needy families by means of food stamps, at this time.

One of the aims of the campaign will be to encourage home canning and preserving. This is in accord with the objectives of the National Defense Conservation and Nutrition program, which urges adequate food supplies.

Underwood in City After 'Sea' Trials

Judge E. Marvin Underwood returned to Atlanta yesterday from Savannah, where he presided at habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Richard Smith, under sentence for murder, and 45 Italian seamen seeking release from the state prison, where they are awaiting deportation to Italy.

Judge Underwood will hear a motion for a new trial today in the damage suit filed by W. H. Harris against the Adjustable Forms Company. Harris, a linesman, was awarded a judgment of $1,000 by a federal jury when he sued to collect for personal injuries suffered when one of the firm's trucks allegedly struck a line which held him to a pole and caused him to fall.

Marion Smith Speaks!

"I have nothing but contempt for the politician who, to advance his own selfish interests, seeks to disturb race relations in the south; seeks to change kindly relations into hatred by spreading statements which he himself must know to be false."

Marion Smith, a distinguished citizen of Georgia and one whose record of unselfish service is an outstanding one, so spoke in talking yesterday to the Atlanta Rotary Club.

He told of how the Board of Regents had made each of the state's colleges an accredited one; had removed the system from debt; had earned the approval of the economy committee; had made more educational progress in the University System than ever before.

"I need not waste your time telling you in detail that the charges against these two men (Doctor Walter D. Cocking and Dr. Marvin Pittman) were false and ridiculous. You have, of course, read the newspapers and no man of intelligence would believe the filthy nonsense that was stated at this so-called trial. It was not believed by the Governor, and it was not believed by the majority of the board who voted under his orders. I know they did not believe it, because they certainly are not idiots, and no one but an idiot, with the facts before him, would have believed anything of the kind."

Mr. Smith declared that he was a member of the Board of Regents and left it twice because he was unable to agree with either Ed Rivers or Eugene Talmadge when they sought to use the board and the University System for political purposes.

"I was on the board when we made arrangements to obtain money from the large foundations which support advancement of education and certainly they asked us for no commitments. No one ever thought about or spoke about putting white and colored people on one campus."

"The constitution of the state of Georgia expressly forbids it. It is not possible for such a question to rise in this state. The foundations have never thought of suggesting such a thing."

He spoke frankly, strongly and fearlessly.

The Atlanta Constitution has never believed any effort was made to put white and colored students together on one campus. There was never a bit of evidence that anyone had attempted it or advocated it. One person at one meeting had heard something which more than 30 persons at the same meeting did not hear. That was absolutely all the evidence.

The constitution of the state is supreme. No person, white or colored, would want to change that section which separates the two races. No one has tried to change it. The Governor knows that to be true.

The Constitution could not join him in what was so obviously a political witch hunt. As was expected, the trial was a farce without any pretense at justice with the verdict arrived at days beforehand and with a resolution of thanks written before the evidence was heard. The Governor believed his own case so weak that days before the hearing he summoned teachers from Athens to the mansion and urged them to get evidence. His agent, R. F. Wood, left a nauseating trail seeking "evidence."

The Atlanta Constitution does not believe the people of Georgia want to see their university, which they and their children love, discredited merely because the Governor is in an unexplained frenzy over something which did not happen. Well might Marion Smith and all other citizens interested in education, say:

"God help the University System and the state of Georgia."

The way the New York Yankees go from triumph to triumph, crushing all in their path, you'd think they had non-aggression pacts with the rest of the league.

An Italian attack on Gibraltar, announced in Rome as leaving the rock in flames, turned out to have hit a village five miles up the line. In the same hemisphere, though.

Nazis in South America

It is not without significance that the western hemisphere country in which the first Nazi putsch was discovered and stopped even before it could get started is that country in South America named in honor of the Liberator, Simon Bolivar. It is a nation in which dictators have risen to power on more than one occasion. Yet few have lived long to wield their power. For Bolivia is a country in which the torch of freedom—and hot blood—runs high.

To understand the background of the apparently quelled Nazi plot, it is necessary to go back some 60 years, when the great flood of German immigration to the United States was slowed by imperial edict and turned southward to implement the Kaiser's dream of a new empire in rich South America. The immigrant tide flowed into Brazil and Bolivia, to the lush valleys of southern Brazil and the uncounted wealth of Bolivian mines.

On more than one occasion the United States has found it necessary in these last 60 years to warn the German government against implementing this dream of South American empire. This German nucleus remains strong. It has never been assimilated, and in Brazil and in Bolivia the intrigues of the Nazi Reich have run their strongest course. The Bolivian army has largely been German-trained. It is German-dominated in the lower ranks of officers, although as a whole the army perhaps is more pro-American than pro-German. Certain it is that it is wholly pro-Bolivian. Nevertheless there undoubtedly was some officer-clique influence within the army favoring the putsch. But apparently the government has been able to hold this force in line.

Any disturbance in Bolivia at this time, even if it did not take the form of complete governmental control, would delight Hitler. For it is from Bolivia that this country has been purchasing huge quantities of tin and developing further sources of antimony, copper, tin and wolfram. And, paradoxically enough, the mines producing these products for the United States are in large part directed by German personnel either wholly German or of German descent.

Danger has apparently been overcome in Bolivia. It will manifest itself elsewhere, giving the lie direct to Hitler's protestations that he is not interested in South America. German history itself gives the lie to this statement, and it is becoming more and more evident that a Germany allowed out of Europe on the high seas will rapidly become a serious menace to this country—in this hemisphere.

Will America wake up in time?

Whatever became of the fellow, featured in southern carnivals, who could turn his head completely around? There was a correspondent to cover the Russian front.

Direct Proof

Striking evidence of the effectiveness of the long-continued RAF bombing of western Germany and portions of occupied Europe is found in the report, by the British air ministry, that 85 Axis ships have been sunk in the past month by air attack and by submarine. Sinkings, it may be noted, nearly as many as the total sinkings of British and allied ships by Germany for the same period.

The particular significance of this report is that it substantiates claims of the British that their bombers have so disrupted German means of land transport that Hitler has been forced to turn largely to ships and the seas to carry his essential war commerce.

Undoubtedly the RAF has so smashed rail centers, canals and roads in occupied France, in Belgium, Holland and in Germany proper, that transportation of necessary supplies overland is extremely difficult and, in many areas, impossible.

When so many Axis ships are at sea that Britain can destroy 85 within one month, Hitler must be near desperation for means to keep up his flow of war supplies, of essential foodstuffs and of men.

In connection with the heavy, and ever heavier, bombings of German vital points by the RAF, it is interesting to note that one American plane factory alone, Lockheed, in California, has now completed and shipped an even 1,000 Hudson bombers to Britain. These bombers, which have been praised by British pilots as the best of their type, have undoubtedly played an important role in the recent effective bombings by the RAF.

May there soon be another 1,000, and another, and another, until Britain is in position to blast the whole of Germany to powder, if need be, to teach that nation, once and for all, that she can never again thrust the world into war's bath of blood, suffering and horror.

Some think the country is impregnable with the defenses already undertaken. Others say it's as safe as a military secret with Burt Wheeler.

We can't figure ourselves out. Here's the long-awaited Red-Nazi war of mutual extermination, and we aren't nearly as neutral as we expected.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

INVASION THREAT FADES WASHINGTON, July 21.—Unless unforeseen developments too late to rough up the Russian war front to change the present outlook, military experts and well-informed government sources now feel that the time is fast approaching when the threat of a German invasion of England this year will be definitely removed.

The Russo-German war is now going into its fifth week. At the time it was launched June 22 the best information available to military circles was that Hitler's time-table called for the conquest of the Russians within six weeks. If his schedule was delayed much beyond that there was the danger of his forces being caught by the fall rainy season, bogging down heavy mechanized equipment and perhaps extending the campaign into the winter months with consequent uncertain results.

If he succeeded in bringing the Russians to quick terms according to the time-table, the British have been convinced that Hitler's next move would be against them. All as a part of the accepted German pattern of making an all-out attempt to end the war this year before the full force of American supplies can be felt.

BRITISH SELDOM WRONG Incidentally, the British have seldom been wrong in forecasting the Balkan states of war events that culminated in the attack on Greece, and he is known to have informed the Russians of Hitler's designs on them as far back as last January. Whatever may have been its faults at the beginning of the war, the British intelligence service is now credited with functioning on all 12 cylinders.

But the Germans are obviously running behind; their reported six-weeks schedule. Although the Russians are engaged in another major retreat their army is apparently still intact, as our military experts appraise the situation, and there has been nothing yet to justify earlier Axis predictions that the Stalin forces would be overwhelmed soon enough to permit a reconcentration of German troops on Channel ports in time for an attack on England this fall.

WHAT GEORGE THINKS Senator George, whose position as chairman of the powerful Foreign Relations Committee usually gives him access to more reliable information than available to his colleagues, shares the view of many of our military experts that the delayed German drive against Russia offers a more hopeful sign for the British, and the entire war picture, for that matter.

Unless there is a complete disintegration of the Russian army within the immediate future—a conclusion that is not warranted by the present trend of events—he sees no likelihood that the Germans will be able to carry out any threatened invasion of the British Isles this year.

Even though successful against the Russians, the Germans, he says, would require from six to eight weeks to reorganize their forces and concentrate them on channel positions suitable for invasion plans off to a start not earlier than October, probably too late to tempt Hitler.

THAT SOVIET RESERVE If any considerable portion of the Russian army is left intact, retreating into the interior behind the Ural mountains, Hitler, the Foreign Relations chairman points out, could hardly afford to remove the main body of his forces from the country. His only alternative would be to have a large Italian army relieve the Germans while the Nazis switched to the English attack.

Senator George thinks that an important bearing on this contingency is found in claims from Moscow that the Russians have a second army in reserve of some 4,000,000 men. The Germans, he believes, would hardly take a chance of removing their forces and entrusting their victory to the Italians with that large a Soviet force left at their backs.

Failing to complete the Russian campaign in time for a fall attack on England, the next move of Hitler is expected to be directed at the Mediterranean. Military experts believe he would choose instead to move simultaneously against Gibraltar and the Suez Canal in an effort to close the Mediterranean to the British—long considered one of his next major objectives.

LESSENER TENSION But whatever the outcome of the Russian war may be, both American and British government officials now see Hitler's time-table delayed sufficiently to permit a noticeable lessening of the tension that has existed heretofore. It promises to give added length to the breathing spell for more intense war preparations that came with the Russian attack.

The winter months will put the British in far better position to meet whatever the Axis have to offer when spring lifts the curtain on the war theater again.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

That Operation On the Heart.

Once again that surgical miracle, the sewing up of a stab wound, makes the news columns. This time the featured part of the story is the fact that the Negro with the wound in his heart walked two blocks, there hailed a police car, asked them to take him to Grady hospital and, after the operation, was reported with a 50-50 chance of survival.

That's about the chances of survival for that heart operation, anyway. Once upon a time I spent several hours at Grady investigating this particular operation for a special story. And, at that time, they'd performed, as I recall, 14 such operations and exactly half of the cases, 7, were then walking around Atlanta, hale and hearty.

The doctors told me, then, that those who died did so because of infection caused by dirt on the knife, ice-pick or whatever weapon had been used by the stabber. In other words, if everyone tempted to stab another would sterilize his weapon first, almost all stabbed ones would recover.

One peculiarity about this heart operation is that it is always, at Grady, performed on Negroes. They haven't had a white man so wounded since they first perfected the operation. It seems to be a matter of racial character. When a white man stabs a foe, he stabs, or slashes, at his throat. It is the Negro stabber who drives at the heart.

Not Immediately Fatal.

It is a popular misconception that a wound in the heart is immediately fatal. The truth is almost entirely contrary. A clean wound in the heart doesn't kill until there has been time for sufficient loss of blood to do the killing.

Negroes have run for blocks, after being stabbed in the heart, to Grady hospital, not collapsing until they reached the emergency operating room. There have been many cases where the injured man didn't even know his heart was touched, until loss of blood weakened him.

They have to take out segments of two or three ribs to get at the heart for the operation. They also use a system whereby the patient's own blood is returned to his veins, a sort of one-man transfusion system. And, usually, they use an "anchor stitch" at one end of the heart, to hold it out while the wound itself is sewn together.

It is a delicate and complicated operation, but it has been done regularly at Grady for quite a few years now.

Bobs Up Now and Then.

Ever since that day—it must have been six or eight years ago—when I delved into the intricacies of this operation, examined the instruments used, saw case histories and heard the surgeon describe it, I've come across, now, and then, articles in magazines telling of the same operation, performed in New York or London or somewhere, as if it were the first time accomplishment of the marvel. Why doesn't somebody give our own surgeons, Grady hospital and Atlanta some credit? I've picked up a London publication and read a long account of the operation, performed there, in which the writer thinks he is describing something brand new in the surgical line. Similarly about its performance in New York.

And it always amazes me. And I wonder if many of the men whose history records as famous "firsts" were not, in actuality, far from the real first, but merely better publicized.

Back From Hospital.

Thomas Andrew Romeo was just in to see me. Just a friendly call. In case you read the little bits of verse that appear in The Sunday Constitution, you're familiar with Thomas Andrew's name. He has been in the hospital for months, with a nervous breakdown that involved complete loss of muscular control.

But he's better and walking around and he'll soon be himself again.

Thomas Andrew has had an interesting life. As a boy he was one of those who became a problem for the juvenile courts. Was sent to a sort of boys' reform school. Later he became a prizefighter and for ten years made his living by the art of the padded gloves.

Now he is an insurance man and a poet. A good poet, too. And he told me that, lying in the hospital, casting up a mental balance sheet of his life, about the best he could do for the credit side was those little poems of his, published in various papers and magazines.

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Saturday, July 22, 1916: "Washington, July 21.—Discussion of the child labor bill, which President Wilson is urging for passage before congress adjourns, was injected into the debate on the naval bill today and an unsuccessful effort was made to secure an unanimous consent agreement to take up the measure as soon as the appropriations bill are passed. Senator Hardwick is opposed to the proposed legislation."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From the news columns of Wednesday, July 22, 1891: "Tifton, Ga., July 21.—(Special) The Tifton & Northeastern railroad is already in operation across the Alapaha river and into Irwin county, and only lacks 13 miles of making a connection with Abbeville. This road will open up one of the finest sections of timber land in Georgia, and long before that is exhausted, the fruit and farming interest of this favored section will afford the road plenty of patronage."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Mr. Ickes Formula.

NEW YORK, July 21.—It is never too late to rough up the frugal Mr. Ickes so I would like to inquire whether anyone has any old butchers-paper magazines, old newspapers, letters or phonograph records lying around in which the price of privilege ever attacked as such, any Communist or fellow-traveler, or even attacked Josef Stalin, himself, as heartily as he has damned Charles Lindbergh for his association with those who think a victory for Adolf Hitler would rub no fuzz off our peach. Not to be caught coy about this, I am driving at the fact that Mr. Ickes for years has been at least as chummy with the Muscovites in the United States as he says Lindbergh has been with the Nazis among us and, to my brilliant mind, considerably more so.

In this connection you have to remember that by Mr. Ickes' own formula it isn't enough merely to dislike Nazis. To suit him, you have to hate them out loud for he said, very accusingly, of Lindbergh, in his latest denunciation last week, "no one has ever heard Lindbergh utter a word of horror at, or even aversion to, the bloody career that the Nazis are following."

As far as my recollection goes you may place a check there. I have never heard or read any such word from Lindbergh and it seems to me that any man with so much to say on the sort of world that he would like to bequeath his children would at least have tweaked the subject of Hitler's atrocities or given it the back of his hand if he really felt any aversion or horror. So I share with Ickes a feeling, based more on things that Lindbergh has conspicuously said rather than on the things he has said, that he doesn't take this butchery and Satanism very much to heart.

The Pot Calls the Kettle.

Mr. Ickes is very good at peeling Hitler and everything he has said about him goes for me but I have followed his associations and utterances rather attentively for a long time and I am positive that he has never viewed with equal loathing the bloody career of the Communist regime in Russia and other countries. In this respect he, himself, has never met the test which he has prescribed for Lindbergh as to the Nazis. Moreover he has associated openly with Communists and fellow-travelers, justified such association on the ground that he couldn't tell by the cut of their jibs or their smell that they were Communists or fellow-travelers.

Mr. Ickes can spot a Nazi sympathizer miles away and around the corner with the naked eye and a nose which knows, but a Communist is no Communist to him unless he wears his membership card in his hatband like an old-time fire-engine chaser and he recognizes no such animal as a fellow-traveler at all.

It is true that Mr. Ickes has formally repudiated Communism. But it is also true that, exercising the same right that Lindbergh stands on, to choose his own poison, he believes that Hitlerism is the greatest threat whereas Lindbergh thinks Communism is a little worse. As one who regards these vices as six of one and half-a-dozen of the other I may say not that it matters, that I think Hitlerism is the more immediate menace just now but that there is no choice because they are alike.

Significant Oversight.

But if Lindbergh as a private citizen goes to a meeting which he has reason to know will be packed with Nazis and their lower-case Quislings he is no more guilty, and I should say a little less guilty, of the very thing that Ickes complains of, than Ickes is when he lends his official presence to a meeting of the Newspaper Guild whose Communist policy has been recognized and fought over a long time by the American political minority in the guild. For Ickes to say that he would repudiate any issue of Communism in the Newspaper Guild and the Lawyers' Guild, two organizations which are notoriously infested with Communists and fellow-travelers, is to low-rate his own intelligence, which is not as low as that, and the intelligence of those who are asked to believe him, which is not that feeble, either. Ickes knew the company he was keeping just as Lindbergh knows the company he keeps today but it will be useless to seek evidence that he ever exerted himself to drive out of the government the cause of Washington the Muscovites and travelers who infest the place. He has never made that his business, a rare and significant oversight on the part of a man who has taken in vastly more territory than his job requires him to.

I am confident that if Mr. Ickes were to discover a Nazi or a Quisling anywhere in the federal government he would drive the fiend out by hand but observe that of Communists and fellow-travelers he demands the most elaborate proof of anti-American political principles. He even thought it would be nice to dump in the Virgin Islands, the outermost defense of the nation in that region, a whole mass of Spanish revolutionary refugees, including, inevitably, many who would be unable to pass the political Wassermann that he applies to Lindbergh's Nazi friends.

Air Wave Alloys.

Alloys of unruly metals can be made with supersonic waves, it is announced by Dr. H. Oyama, of Tokyo, Japan. It has been almost impossible to produce an alloy of metals whose melting point differs widely, such as iron and lead or lead and copper. Dr. Oyama utilizes the supersonic wave oscillation to make these alloys outright. The process can be employed also to produce an intensely hard steel.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

ONCE I SAW HUEY Some years ago I was in New Orleans and went around and saw Huey Long, Kingfish of Louisiana.

Huey was a card. He didn't like the newspapers. He called them "them lying newspapers." Huey would put over a steal of money or would smear some innocent person. If the newspapers criticized him he would call them liars and threaten them.

Huey was a card. I went to see him about the university football team. Someone had told him I knew something about a football coach he was interested in hiring.

"I got to get a coach for my team," he said. "I don't care how much he costs just so he can win. My team has got to be a winner."

He would talk about "my university" and "my team up at the university." It was his team, too, and it was his university.

He hired the professors and he hired the football coach. He had a board of trustees. They didn't amount to anything. When the collapse came and they started hunting for Huey's president of the university, Jim Smith, they found out he had printed some bonds without asking the board.

All the time Huey would sit back and curse the newspapers. He had the courts. It was his state. Three or four of the newspapers refused to give in to him. Every time one of them was critical Huey would curse "them lying newspapers."

A lie to Huey was anything that disagreed with what he said or did. If they didn't agree with Huey they were liars. "Them lying newspapers." Huey was a card.

HUEY'S BODYGUARD Huey had some of the state patrol in plain clothes. They were a body-guard for him. After Huey got to be senator he never traveled without them.

Huey was a card. He barred reporters from the hostile newspapers from his office. He wouldn't give them any news. Huey said they wouldn't print the truth.

What he meant was they wouldn't print as truth what Huey said. Huey said a lot of things.

He swore he'd get "them lying newspapers." His bodyguard loved it. They knocked cameras out of the hands of news photographers and slugged a reporter or two. Huey loved it.

He kept right on preaching. He hired a few preachers to go over the state and preach for him. He kept telling the small farm people he was for them. He used to sit in his office and laugh about how easy it was to fool the poor people. They were so eager to be helped. They would listen to anyone who wanted to help them. That was human nature.

The average farmer has had a raw deal. The average tenant farmer or share cropper, hungry and half sick and trying to send his kids to school so they could get along better—Huey whooped it up for them. They paid a lot more attention to Huey than they did to the Farm Security Administration workers or to the government health workers. Huey hated Roosevelt and he told them to pay no attention to the lying newspapers but to believe in him, Huey Long.

He was a card, was Huey. He kept his name in the papers. He was always doing something sensational. He started up all sorts of campaigns. He controlled the courts, the judges, the juries, the schools—he got it all. He was the Kingfish. And all the time he cursed the newspapers that kept printing the facts, that refused to bow down and let him censor what they had to say. He said they printed lies.

THEY FOUND OUT LATER When Huey Long had been buried, the people began to find out that Huey had lied to them.

The newspapers had been taking a lot of abuse from Huey and his crowd. But, when the truth did come out so that everyone could know it, they found out the newspapers had been the ones to tell it.

They took Jim Crown, the good-natured editor of The States, and they took other editors down there, and they honored them. National magazines sent down their best writers to see the men who wouldn't take Huey's lies and print them as truth.

Huey had done them a lot of dirt. He had printed untruths about them. He had had their men slugged. He had cursed them and reviled them.

"Them lying newspapers"—one or two of the reporters and editors had tears in their eyes when at last the courts sent some of the Long crowd to jail. The others just felt good about it. The world knows now that it wasn't the newspapers of Louisiana that lied. Huey wouldn't give them any news; he cursed them and had their men hit with blackjacks. He'd get 'em, he said. "Them lying newspapers." But, at last the world knows that it was Huey who was lying.

Well, he was a card. I can see him yet. He had an easy way. A lot of well-meaning people believed some of his lies. He was a card. He got so he didn't mind what he said about his foes. He would say anything about them. He said some had Negro blood. He said others were illegitimate birth. He'd say anything and then shout about "them lying newspapers."

You'd like a swell book about Huey and his crowd. It's called "Louisiana Hayride."

The Proper Equipment For a Poet Is Talent and a Private Income

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Everybody who writes for a living receives many requests for guidance from people who wish to write. Unless he is an old crab, he is glad to give such help as he can; but often he says to himself: "If I discourage this person, I may rob the world of the works of a genius; if I encourage him, I may doom him to years of drudgery without hope of reward."

Usually he finds a polite way to dodge responsibility, but he should at least say: "You are preparing to do more hard work for less money than anybody else in America—not excluding the share-cropper."

Do you know why the "one-book author" is typical? In writing the first one, he is supported by the hope of wealth and glory. But that first one exhausts the romance and vanity of creation, and the second promises only drudgery.

A book that sells 5,000 copies at $2.50 is successful, yet the author's take is only $1,250 for a year of hard work. Any good mechanic makes more. And for every book that sells 5,000 copies, there are a score that sell only 1,000—or less.

What about writing for the magazines? Well, an editor builds his magazine as you would build a house. You wouldn't wait for strangers to offer lumber, brick and plaster. You would go to regular dealers who are able to supply what you need. And that is what the editor does.

A few years ago, one of the popular monthly magazines examined 10,000 unsolicited manuscripts in a period of 12 months, and bought exactly one.

Have you noticed that more and more of our successful writers are women? There may be many reasons, but one is economic. A woman writer may be subsidized while learning the trade; she has a man to keep the wolf from the door. Literature is not bread and butter, but a side-line to housekeeping.

A doctor competes only with doctors, but a writer must compete with doctors, lawyers, the President's wife, former presidents, would-be presidents, and others in every walk of life, down to the lifer in Sing Sing.

If the present trend continues, the business of writing may survive only as a side-line. And bright-eyed beginners who ask the advice of ink-stained chronic offenders may be told: "First get yourself a regular job that will provide a living."

Suggests Small-Time Bands May Cost You Five Bucks Some Night

Rambling around through the weekly press—known to the trade as the "country papers"—run across advertisements and press "news items" about dance bands, with noted leaders and beautiful vocalists, to appear at such a spot on such a Saturday night. Admission, 50 cents per couple.

"Ha, ha," we cognoscenti of swing and sweet music laugh. "I'll bet that's a corny outfit."

Maybe so. Maybe they're terrible. Maybe worse.

But—"and" "but" is an important word.

Young fellow who can blow into a trumpet and organize a band of youngsters without jobs and get engagements—with rooms and eat—may be starting on a career. Better to remember his name. Number of them on the road. Usually they travel in a bus—bought fourth-hand on time. They may be a lousy looking outfit—if you'll pardon the term.

The bandmen press their own white pants and the girl vocalist washes her lingerie in the bath tub—if there is a bath tub. Or in the washbowl. But they all look nice when they play and they deliver their best.

Don't waste tears over them. They're on their way. In Shakespeare's day actors were "vagabond players," outcasts of society.

Many a bigtime of the drama has told me about how he fought for a start and kept on fighting from leading the ferocious bloodhounds in the parade of an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" show until he worked up to playing Simon Legree.

Some of the stars had lucky lightning hit them. Many of them have come up the "hard way."

You and your party last week been at the coast resort last week and passed up a band—at 50 cents per couple—in favor of bridge or a shot at roulette at some other joint. Which was up to you and no kick coming.

Yet, you and your wife may fight to pay five bucks each to hear that same small-time band leader and his gang at Rockefeller Center in New York a year or so from now.

The odds are against it. They can't all make the top. But a lot of them do. And it's always nice to say: "I remember him when."

"With Reservations."

Recent issue of Outdoor Georgia printed a statement by one Lem Griffith, of the Oketoneke swamp, regarding fish.

Mr. Griffith if he was quoted correctly and I hope he was not, deposed, though not on oath:

"The biggest fish I have heard of being caught at Billy's lake this season pulled the fisherman out of the boat and was pulling him across the lake so fast it set the seat of his pants on fire. He had to let go the fish and swim ashore to put out the blaze."

The official publication of the wildlife division of the state of Georgia should not print such statements like that without checking up on them and obtaining evidence from reliable witnesses.

While I was not there and cannot testify from personal observation, I feel sure Mr. Griffith was guilty of exaggeration. Inadvertent, perhaps, but nevertheless serious.

Indeed, the whole statement smacks of inaccuracy. If Mr.

Griffith desires the public to accept his statement why is he so reticent as to details? On what date did this incident occur? What was the name and address of the fisherman involved? And what was the name and address of the fish?

The press is the palladium of the people. I don't know exactly what a palladium is, but it's a fine word. And such statements as Mr. Griffith is reputed to have made tend to weaken the confidence of the public in their favorite newspapers. Editors should be more watchful.

To forestall misunderstandings, let me state here that in reprinting Mr. Griffith's narrative as to the fish neither this newspaper nor I subscribe to its verity. It is published merely as a matter of public interest.

You Know Any?

"Place names" have interested many writers, including this one, who has delighted in several up in the Dahlonega region. But the McIntosh County News, down on the coast, adds to our collection:

"When it comes to distinctive names for places, our opinion is that this section can compete with the most outlandish of them. Read this list, then add the ones you can remember that we've missed: Boggy Gall, Windy Hill, Old Men's Camp, Bull Town Swamp, Old Woman's Snuff Box, Rifle Cut, Eagle Neck, Young Man Road, Cow Horn Road, Buttermilk Sound, Shirltail Cut."

Dictionary publishers must be nearly as bewildered as maps of Europe printers, with the enterprising enthusiasm for creating new words. On top of cafeterias we have produced "sandwicheries" and a few first cousins. We have the "cheeseburgers" and number of kindred burgers. But the latest creation to meet my eye from Minneapolis, where the "Aquattennial" got underway last week, I didn't read far enough to learn what it is.

Parents of Abandoned Boy Sought in Chicago

CHICAGO, July 21.—(P)—He says his name is Tommy and he's three and a half years old.

That's about all that juvenile authorities have been able to learn from the little brown-eyed boy who was found abandoned eight days ago at Brookfield Zoo.

Many times he has asked when his daddy would come for him in his "pink truck." But the authorities haven't an answer for that either.

A series of scientific examinations authorized by the juvenile court to help identify the waif have established tentatively that his last name sounds like "Medahgo," that he is of southern Italian ancestry, that his parents reared him carefully and loved him—until eight days ago.

Change in Wheat Market Quota Voted by House

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(P)—The house passed today legislation to amend the wheat marketing quota act to permit farmers to sell their normal production of wheat, even if harvested from excess acreage, without paying penalties.

Representative Ritzley, Republican, Oklahoma, told the house the bill "takes care of the farmer with excess acreage and a crop failure." It was explained that the measure, which now goes to the senate, would allow a farmer who had a 100-acre allotment and a normal production of 10 bushels an acre, to sell penalty-free 1,000 bushels even though the production actually came five bushels an acre from 200 acres.

U. S. Shipping Firms Get Danish Cargo Ships

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(P)—Seven Danish cargo ships acquired under provisions of the ship requisition act were allocated to American operators in defense trade routes today by the Maritime Commission.

The 2,500 deadweight tons, and the 2,545 deadweight tons, were taken over by commission representatives in New York. These along with the 2,900 deadweight-ton Sessa, acquired last week, were chartered to the Marine Transport Company, of New York. This company is operating five other Danish cargo vessels on charter of the commission.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. ## Pulse of The Public

CONDUCTED HIS OWN INVESTIGATION.

Editor Constitution: It was not in the role of a newspaper reporter, nor a thrill-seeking and curious spectator, but that of a loyal University of Georgia alumnus that I attended the "trials" of Dr. Walter Cocking and Dr. Marvin S. Pittman which eventually ended in their ouster from the university system.

Being a lawyer—and a Georgia one at that—and having been drilled in the fundamentals that there are two sides to every question I deemed it advisable to ascertain just how the colored people stood on the trumped-up charges against them. So I besought the word of a good friend of mine—an upright young man, a loyal citizen and a patriot. He is an honor graduate of Morehouse College, one of the outstanding Negro schools in the nation. His brother is in Washington studying to be a doctor. Three years from now he will be back down here administering to his own people.

Of course, "we" had never heard of Dr. Cocking nor Dr. Pittman until this issue ensued. But it is difficult to believe that inasmuch as the south already is branded as an inferior portion of our union that the head of the state of Georgia tries to make the situation worse by putting a further millstone around its neck through contemplated political gain. We, as a group, are trying to follow the one that promises us security. We are not trying to force a racial social equality. We are only trying to make the best of things through peace and harmony and guide ourselves by the constitution that was laid down by the state. By that constitution which unequivocally does not stipulate racial equality we shall abide."

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills," wrote the Psalmist, "from which cometh my help—unto the Lord who hath made heaven and earth."

Always a good text for anyone who is fortunate enough to have a trip, even if it be a very short one, into the mountains of north Georgia and western North Carolina. I had such a trip last week, going up Thursday afternoon to Ridgecrest, via Tallulah Falls, Clayton, Franklin, Sylva, Waynesville and Asheville; returning Friday via Hendersonville, Greenville and Toccoa.

The recent rains have brought renewed life to everything on the hills and in the valleys. The trees look as green and tender as if the leaves had just been formed. The wild flowers are the prettiest I have ever seen in the mountains. And the valleys are filled with growing corn and peas and beans and clover and all the other typical crops of that section. The pastures are like carpet. Never before I seen the grass so green and luxuriant. And the cows and sheep and horses and goats and hogs appear to be having a very good time with that grass.

North Carolina has selected this summer for widening several of the highways in the western part of the state, and that is all to the good for the days ahead, but it does mean plenty of inconvenience for motorists this summer. They are handling it very well, it seems to me, by series of one-way traffic lanes, with guards, warning the traffic through. Every time I would get caught at the foot of the class, with a half dozen freight trucks ahead of me, which meant that you couldn't pass them until you got to the next town. In one instance between Sylva and Waynesville, a truck loaded with watermelons led the procession at the speed of approximately 12 miles an hour. I was amused at a big passenger bus trying to pass that truck all the way, but it never did. The wonder is that these freight and passenger trains on our narrow, winding highways do not kill a hundred people every day.

Western North Carolina is a sort of headquarters for religious meetings during the summer. The Methodists have a place at Junaluska, the Presbyterians have a place at Black Mountain, as does the Y. M. C. A., and the Baptists have a place at Ridgecrest. Church people attend these conferences from every part of the south. There were more than 2,000 Sunday school officers and teachers registered for the meeting at Ridgecrest last week—from Texas, Missouri, Oklahoma and New Mexico to the west, from Maryland to the east, from Florida and Cuba to the south. It was a great picture to see these men and women and young people brought together there on top of the mountain, studying to become better teachers of the Bible, better workers in the churches, better servants of the Lord. And what was happening at Ridgecrest among the Baptists was happening at the other places for the Methodists and Presbyterians.

MORE HOME OWNERS NEEDED IN AMERICA

Editor Constitution: McGill's column, "Concept of Democracy," is most interesting. My wife and I discussed it at the breakfast table.

One conclusion we reached is that the concept of democracy has been weakened by the increasing lack of real home life. A house, with a yard, is necessary to develop a bond between a person and any particular place. An apartment dweller cannot develop that bond. Real home life is necessary in that house to develop the feeling of security we all crave. The land and the security are necessary items in developing a love for country, and a live concept of democracy. Our government recently took steps to make homes available at reasonable terms. It now seems headed for a war abroad, which will make taxes and costs such that many now owning homes will lose them. Certainly, few new ones will be built.

We realize there are other factors to be considered in connection with our present apparently weak conception of democracy, but the nearer we come to a nation of home owners, the more readily many problems of today, such as crime, unclean politics, etc., will be solved, and the stronger will be our interest in seeing that the right things are done in and for our country.

GEORGE E. BIGGE, Acting Chairman.

Sincerely yours,

A copy of the letter from Bigge was shown to Judge Max McRae, assistant welfare director. Asked if he had ever seen the letter, McRae replied he had, and then added: "Where did you get it?"

When Governor Talmadge was asked why he did not deem this letter news that should have been released at the time it was received, he said:

"You know that I do not think it good policy to discuss these federal matters before they are finally settled."

GOES TO WASHINGTON.

GREENSBORO, Ga., July 21.—

Arthur Stewart Jr., of White Plains, formerly with the Soil Conservation Service at Cumming, has accepted a post in the Agricultural Department in Washington.

The old stove brings new cash when advertised through the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Heretofore when the fire trucks rolled out to douse a blaze the man at the dispatcher's office had no way to get in touch with them until the captain called in to ask for more equipment or to report everything under control.

All that's being changed in the interest of greater efficiency now, and within a few weeks four cars bearing two-way radios will roll with the trucks, according to Fire Chief C. C. Styron.

With the radios working fire captains will be in touch with headquarters at all times, and vice versa, which will enable the dispatcher to send returning trucks to fight another blaze in the same vicinity. In the past, fire trucks on their way home have rolled within a block of unseen blazes to which other trucks from the station were dashing furiously.

One of the four cars which Police Radio Engineer Joe Fleming and his staff have equipped with two-way radio is already in service and three others will be delivered soon.

All that's being changed in the interest of greater efficiency now, and within a few weeks four cars bearing two-way radios will roll with the trucks, according to Fire Chief C. C. Styron.

With the radios working fire captains will be in touch with headquarters at all times, and vice versa, which will enable the dispatcher to send returning trucks to fight another blaze in the same vicinity. In the past, fire trucks on their way home have rolled within a block of unseen blazes to which other trucks from the station were dashing furiously.

One of the four cars which Police Radio Engineer Joe Fleming and his staff have equipped with two-way radio is already in service and three others will be delivered soon.

The old stove brings new cash when advertised through the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Heretofore when the fire trucks rolled out to douse a blaze the man at the dispatcher's office had no way to get in touch with them until the captain called in to ask for more equipment or to report everything under control.

The voters who elected the instigator of this scourge and implore you to give long and careful consideration to the records of the next candidates for the high offices of Georgia, lest a repetition of the present disgrace ensue.

GIVES A TEST OF GOOD WRITING.

Editor Constitution: I want to express appreciation of Ralph McGill's writeup of the Tyrone all-day dinner, in Fayette county.

Some one has said that the real test of all good writing and literature should be based on whether it made for a better life. I think his story of this gathering does tend to "create within us a clean spirit."

MORE HOME OWNERS NEEDED IN AMERICA

Editor Constitution: McGill's column, "Concept of Democracy," is most interesting. My wife and I discussed it at the breakfast table.

One conclusion we reached is that the concept of democracy has been weakened by the increasing lack of real home life. A house, with a yard, is necessary to develop a bond between a person and any particular place. An apartment dweller cannot develop that bond. Real home life is necessary in that house to develop the feeling of security we all crave. The land and the security are necessary items in developing a love for country, and a live concept of democracy. Our government recently took steps to make homes available at reasonable terms. It now seems headed for a war abroad, which will make taxes and costs such that many now owning homes will lose them. Certainly, few new ones will be built.

We realize there are other factors to be considered in connection with our present apparently weak conception of democracy, but the nearer we come to a nation of home owners, the more readily many problems of today, such as crime, unclean politics, etc., will be solved, and the stronger will be our interest in seeing that the right things are done in and for our country.

"I HAVE SOMETHING FOR YOU"

Mike Asks Kit To Marry Him; She Refuses and Tells Him About Kirk.

By Margaret Gorman Nichols.
Author of "Till Wait for You" and "Kiss After Midnight."

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

"I'm going to move, Kit. I may ask you to help me fix up the new place." A cheerful apartment, he thought, and a desk instead of a card table on which to write. And maybe a small place in the country later when he had made enough to quit his job and devote himself exclusively to writing. And then—a wife? He grinned. "The winner of the Irish sweepstakes couldn't feel as good as I feel tonight. I told you I even wanted to dance. Let's dance."

He liked to dance with Kit. He liked to look at her and talk to her. He liked her sympathy, her lively mind, her love of beauty and justice and honesty. He liked her thoughts and feelings, the young glow of her, that "something" about her that hurt your throat when she looked at you. She was real and young and lovely. The whole of Kit was in her eyes—clear and candid and a little eager. A man wanted to marry a girl like that. In his mind, despite all the other girls he had liked for various reasons, he knew that he wanted to marry a girl like Kit, and that such a marriage would be fine and enduring and that they would never cease to enjoy each other. Love! Love was such a far-away word, he thought. It was a frightening word. When you realized the full meaning and power of the word, you were afraid you couldn't live up to it.

When they returned to the table, Mike sat straight, his hands folded on the edge of the table, his brown eyes very sober.

"Kit, would you—would you marry me?"

Kit said spontaneously, "But you don't love me, Mike."

"No, no, I don't, Kit. I don't feel the way a man is supposed to feel when he is proposing. I don't feel silly or moonstruck or have that I-can't-live-without-you look. I never felt more practical in my life. I've never been in love. Kit, I've been attracted and infatuated, but I've never lost my head or my sense of direction. No girl has ever been a goddess. She's just been a girl, another human being, with lacks and faults for all her physical or mental appeal. But you—well, would you? I'd be very good to you. Cruelty is something I was happily born without."

Kit looked at him. Then she shook her head. "I am grown-up, Mike, I must be. Because while I know you'd be a good husband, I know also that you aren't the husband for me. I'm sorry. There has to be something we haven't. We could make a successful marriage because we'd both work hard at it to make it successful. But there's a difference between a successful marriage and a happy marriage. Ours would have missing sparks. Don't you see?"

She kept her eyes on him when she said, "The Sparks fly thick and fast when I'm with Kirk. They fly so thick and fast I can't make myself understood, and everything gets all mixed up, a sort of wonderful, crazy mix-up."

Mike looked at her soberly. "So it's Kirk. I'm pretty thick. I should have guessed it. I did at first and then—well, why don't you do something about it?"

"I have. Everything wrong."

He chuckled. Leaning forward, he covered her hand with his.

"You were right. We'd make a go of it, but all the time we'd know there was something missing. You don't want a friend to live with, Kit. You want a husband who is also your lover. You don't want a writer who works best between midnight and dawn. You're still the girl of the little white house and grass-seed advertisements. You want a man to come home at night to you—and the baby and the dog."

He smiled as he pressed the hand beneath his own on the table.

"It was a good idea, anyway. I felt so righteous that for a few seconds I thought it would work. But human beings don't add up like numbers. Kit, a marriage isn't like making a cake—you put in all the ingredients the book tells you, stir them up and have a perfect cake. You can't be practical about emotions. They go off on tangents and thumb their noses at you. But without them it would be pretty awful, wouldn't it?"

"But why is it that you are at your worst with the person you love and want?"

He chuckled again. "Emotions, sweet. They knock your poise to pieces. Love doesn't make much sense, Kit, from what I've observed. But most people want it, a lot of people suffer for it and some have been known to die for it. It must be pretty wonderful. Not even the industrial age has altered the mate-hunting instinct. When you see a robin hopping around looking mighty pleased with himself, you know his girl friend is peeping down from the branches. When you aren't in love yourself, it looks stupid and silly. When you are, I suppose you're sorry for the people who aren't. It makes the colors in the world brighter."

"You don't mind that I..."

"You were right. You have to have the sparks. But you and Kirk..."

"Wrong..."

"Why? It's just everything."

"It's love," Mike said. "I told you it didn't make sense. Want me to do something about it? If they have mediators in business and labor masses, why not one in a romance?"

"No, please! Please don't. You've done enough for me. If I can't handle it better in the future than I have in the past, then I belong back in the nursery."

He nodded. "Kirk fits into the picture, Kit. I didn't. He'd look just right in that white house. What time is it? We have a long way to go to get you back."

"I'll call Cecil and have him meet my train. It's too far for you to drive tonight."

"Okay. I'll be driving up one of these afternoons soon."

"Tracy would like to see a car coming down the road to the house. She's always looking for one."

"I'll be up soon."

He took her to the station and a few minutes before her train left he took her by the shoulders and drew her gently to him and smiled at her. "Isn't a girl a little older after her first proposal? It's my first, too. Makes me feel like Father Time. Kit, we can't walk when we're born. We have to crawl and toddle first. And in most of our experiences it's the same thing."

"Am I toddling, Mike? At least that?"

He patted her shoulder affectionately. "You're beginning to walk. I am walking. I used to reel. So long, kid."

The house was quiet and dimly lighted when Kit returned from New York. She felt infinitely better, incredibly older and amazingly clear-headed. It was so simple when you stopped fighting your youth and inexperience, when you stopped reproaching yourself for past mistakes, and when you untied the knots in your mind and feelings. But was it so simple when all that stood in your way of making Kirk understand you was Tracy who cared for him, too? Could there be any real understanding as long as the one person who made Tracy look and feel better was Kirk?

She was about to turn off the lamp beside the bed when Tracy rang for her. Quickly she put on the printed house coat and soft slippers and went down the hall to Tracy's room.

Tracy was in bed. "I heard you come in," she said. "How is Mike?"

Kit smiled. "He was wearing a new suit. He looks fine. He sold a short story."

Tracy looked thoughtful. "So Mike writes a short story and I take up knitting... The day of miracles is not past. I can't sleep. You asked me once if I'd like to have you read to me. I would tonight. I went through quite a siege of poetry once. I called it the 'Poet's Inning.' Over there on the bookshelf is a copy of Elizabeth Barrett Browning... Do you mind?"

Kit smiled again. "Not Elizabeth Barrett Browning..."

She got the book and came back to the chair beside Tracy's bed and began to read. "Wait," Tracy said, when she finished the lines: "Guss now who holds three?"

"Death," I said, but there, The silver answer rang—"Not death, but love."

Kit looked up.

Tracy said, "That's the answer. That's my answer, too. If only in some way I could know that this is what I have always wanted and isn't a passing thing as the others have been."

Troy and Hill ThankSmokies On Air Tonight

Sports Editor Answers Attack by Knoxville Over WAGA.

By PAUL JONES.
Jack (The Little Round Man) Troy will throw a few curves at the Knoxville press and radio gang tonight when he is guest on Joe Hill's sports broadcast at 6:30 o'clock.

Sports Editor Troy, it comes to us, was in Knoxville following the "stall" game here, and the sports scribes and sports "casters" there treated him in a rather "rough" manner. The going got so hot that Troy had to retreat to the Tennessee hills outside the Smoky city.

But, now Troy is back here in the old home town, and Joe Hill, the ad lib artist, who announces the ball games over WAGA, has asked Troy to be his guest so that the "Little Round Man" might get sweet revenge for the "attack" by the Knoxvilleans. Troy will take the liberty at the same time to thank the Knoxville ball club for being so helpful in keeping the Crackers on top. Tonight is appreciation night at the ball park.

'Lost' Heir Found By Radio Program

Edward F. Valentine Jr., 27, of Minneapolis, has just learned through the CBS network program, "Court of Missing Heirs," that his grandfather died four years ago in Newark, leaving him $2,000 in cash.

Valentine, the 100th heir discovered by the "Court" since its CBS debut December 19, 1939, is making a special trip to New York to appear on tonight's broadcast, and tell his story. WGST will handle locally at 7 o'clock.

Details of the case of the grandfather, Elmer Lutz, a plumber, were broadcast last July 1. The program told of Lutz' death July 9, 1937, and asked for the whereabouts of his grandson, one of several legacies of his will. Lutz' daughter, Mrs. Edward F. Valentine Sr., mother of young Edward, had died in Newark in 1930, when her son was 16. The father had taken the boy west, and nothing was ever heard of either again. Relatives thought the father had died, and the executor sought vainly for Edward Jr.

Then the "Court" went on the air with the story. The very next day it received a wire from Bertha E. Wilson, of Toledo, Ohio, informing them of Edward Jr.'s whereabouts. Investigation not only definitely established his identity as the heir sought, but he revealed that, like Mark Twain's report of Edward Sr.'s death was premature. The father is living in Detroit. The younger Valentine had gone to Minneapolis in 1931, to attend the University of Minnesota, and had remained there after graduation.

Carole Landis and her first movie fan, Clem McCarthy, and Gene Austin with his trusty piano will be among Burgess Meredith's guests on "We, the People," tonight over the WABC-Columbia network and WGST at 8 o'clock.

Gene Austin, whose phonograph transcription of "My Blue Heaven" broke all sales records, will tell how he became everything from a lawyer to a bathtub salesman to avoid a singing career.

Auto Traveling 95 Overtakes

Four young people were slightly injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding turned over while running at a reported speed of 95 miles per hour.

The automobile, going out Moreland avenue, on the new Macon highway, struck a curbing and turned over, police were told, while the driver of the car was trying to coax the speedometer up to the 100-mile-per-hour mark. At the time the car turned over, a police report said, the car was traveling at 95 miles per hour.

The four injured were Charles Edwin Bagley, 18, 1326 Hill street; Robert Miller Tiner, 16, 578 Pryor street; Miss Corrine Dutton, 17, of 889 Crew street, and Miss Annie Belle Conoughy, 629 Capitol avenue. They were all treated at Grady hospital for minor cuts and bruises.

Draftee Wonders About 'Unlucky 13'

David Jesse Folds, 22, of Hapeville, is in the army now and wondering whether 13 is or isn't his lucky number.

Folds was lately a registrant at Fulton Draft Board No. 13 in College Park.

Last month, in the 13th Georgia draft call, he received a notice to report for induction Friday, June 13.

Temporarily deferred because someone volunteered at the last minute, 13 days later he was again ordered to Fort McPherson.

And, as if fate were "rubbing it in," there were 13 men from his board in that particular call.

Beef Pot Roast Offers Delicious Economy

By Sally Saver.

Knowing your cuts of meat is important in getting the best for your money. From the shoulder, or chuck, section of beef comes a very good cut, the arm pot roast. This may be easily recognized because it contains a small round bone and the ends of from three to five ribs. The rib ends distinguish it from the arm pot roast which likewise contains a small round bone.

This cut is economical and when cooked slowly by moist heat it is deliciously tender. It is fine in flavor, may be cooked with vegetables, and produces a tasty gravy.

Beef Arm Pot Roast

3 or 4 pounds arm pot roast.

Flour.

Salt and pepper.

Lard.

Wipe meat with a damp cloth. Dredge with flour; season with salt and pepper and brown in hot lard. Add 1-2 cup hot water, cover and simmer. More water may be added as needed. Allow meat to cook about 2 1/2 hours or until tender. Vegetables may be added the last three-quarters of an hour of cooking.

Spiced Pot Roast

3 pounds beef pot roast.

1 1/2 teaspoons salt.

Pepper.

Flour.

3 tablespoons lard.

4 medium sized onions.

2 tablespoons prepared mustard.

1 teaspoon celery seed.

1 cup strained tomatoes.

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Rub well with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Brown it well in hot lard. Remove the meat to the kettle, cover closely and simmer in this sauce 3 hours or more, turning the meat two or three times so that the whole will be well flavored with the sauce.

A shoulder pot roast, properly cooked, will make as tasty a meat dish as you can find.

Girl's Phoning Man Forces Duty Date

Dear Dixie:

I have known a man for several years, and whenever I see him he is nice to me and takes me out to dine and dance. He lives in another city, so I do not see him very often. I work for a firm which has a branch office in his home city. I have to go there often on business, and I always call him up. Several times he has been here and never calls me, although I know he is here for at least a day. The point I am making is this: I have to go to his home town in two weeks, and I want to know if you think I should call him up as I always do? It seems a little odd that he never calls me, yet whenever I go to his home town and call him, he is perfectly grand to me. What would you do?

CATHERINE.

My advice to you is to go on to his home city and try, if possible, to let it be known that you are there, and have not called him. It seems to me that if he wanted to be with you that he would call.

By Dixie George.

you up and come to see you when he visits your home city. There is no excuse for him not letting you know that he is coming, for there are many methods of communication. You must remember, and take into consideration, that when you are in his home city and call him, he is in the position of host, and does his part to entertain you. I think he likes you and enjoys being with you, but I do not see any excuse for him not seeing you or calling you when he comes into town. Go on to his town, and as I said before, try to arrange in some way to let him know you are there. Let him do the calling, because I think it is his move now. If he wants to be with you he will call you. Do not force yourself upon him.

BUS ACQUAINTANCES MUST BE TOLERATED

This is a problem which may not seem much to you, but it worries me to death. What can be done about people who insist upon sitting with me on the bus every morning when I go to work? Of course, I mean people whom I know very slightly, and who have absolutely no regard for the fact that I am deep in a paper or a magazine. I do not want to talk with them, but when they sit down with me and start talking there is nothing I can do. What can I do? I get so bored with people like that, and I know I am not interesting to them, either.

WORKING GIRL.

My only suggestion to you would be to either take an earlier or a later bus to avoid these people, or to sit with some one when you board the bus. If I were you, I would not become so upset over the situation and just take it in the spirit and humor and the everyday happenings of the work-a-day world. It happens to everyone, and there is nothing you can do about it. But remember, when you enter the car or the bus, be careful of where you sit in order that you will not be classed in the same category with those of whom you speak.

If you need help with some problem, Dixie George will be glad to try to give you advice. Just write her in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

MY DAY: New NYA Center Holds Dedication

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Sunday.—I flew quite comfortably to Auburn, N. Y., on Friday in a little seaplane which landed on Owego Lake. As we looked down, there seemed to be no possible way of getting up to the dock, but we finally saw and open lane and taxied in quite easily.

From 11 o'clock on, the day was busy. Mr. Aubrey Williams was there and together we visited the NYA grounds, buildings and shops. The plant is certainly a good one, but the best of plants will mean little unless the boys have the right spirit. The head of the council, who was my guide, came down from Middletown, N. Y., and seemed to be a fine young man well equipped to fill his position as leader.

The girls' resident project is situated in a delightful house with ample grounds. It is not very far away from the boys', which makes it possible for the girls to take part of their training in the kitchen and dining room of the boys' project. The boys work here in three shifts, so the means have to be served here from 5 o'clock in the morning through until 11 o'clock at night.

I think this NYA center should be one of the best training centers in the state, and I am very happy to have had a part in its dedication. We flew home and were in a fog the last part of the way, so I was surprised when we came down to find that we had actually reached Poughkeepsie, though we had not seen the ground for some time. I was home at my cottage for an 8 o'clock supper.

Yesterday we had a belated birthday party for my brother. He has a great many warm friends and they gathered together here from as far west as St. Louis, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. George Bye, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deans were responsible for some very original entertainment including the importation of the Gay Nineties quartette.

All of our guests were gone by 4:30, but since I was expecting my cousin, Mrs. Hall Rathbone, and her two sons, I put off going in for my second swim until their arrival. The weather was cool and clear yesterday afternoon and I could almost feel a suggestion of autumn as we sat out on the porch in the evening. I know, however, that this is a little premature and that by next week I shall be groaning about the heat.

We had quite a large picnic lunch today, at which the group gathered together violated all the rules that I was taught in my youth. We had a good time as a group, and yet none of us new beforehand whether we had anything in common or not.

To Look Cooler, Use Light Make-up

If you seem as fresh as a daisy when everyone else is wilting with the weather, you'll probably be a sensation. It takes some managing but you can keep up the appearance of being cool and collected.

Summer is not the time to wear heavy makeup or to doll up too much. Light makeup not only looks cooler, but is much more in keeping with the fresh, scrubbed-behind-the-ears kind of beauty that goes best with the season. Use little, if any, mascara and eye shadow and no heavy perfumes—just a whiff of light, floral scent. Do your splurging with cologne, which cools you off.

You will look more comfortable in a simple little frock of some non-crushable material than in fussy dresses. And the less jewelry the better. Doodads and bangles are heat conductors. And a furpiece cuddled around a girl's neck almost makes me run a temperature.

Nothing makes you appear more completely wilted than to rummage around in your handbag and come up with a dank little ball of a handkerchief. Why not carry a spare? And always start out in the morning with a clean compact puff, perhaps an extra one, because the oil from your skin quickly soils your powder puff. You might like to tuck into your bag one of those small packets of makeup fresheners for the hot days in town. They will save your face after you have spent a few hours trudging around in the heat.

Your accessories must be freshly laundered to give you that crisp appearance. Slightly soiled collars and gloves take all the starch out of your looks. Before you draw on your gloves, go over hands, wrists and arms with a dab of talcum powder with cologne. That will make you feel cooler and will keep your gloves fresh longer.

To feel about 10 degrees cooler than the thermometer says, brush your hair up away from your face and off your neck. If your hair needs doing more often, you might try having it set with tonic every other time.

Don't let your figure slump. Just a trio out of your daily dozen will keep your waist trim and your muscular girdle in good tone, and will also keep you feeling fit and better able to stand the heat. Take your exercises in the cool of the morning before you lose interest.

Be a smart girl and don't drink too many heating beverages on a hot evening. Fresh fruit juice is about the best thing you can order. During the day drink plenty of water and occasionally add to it a pinch of salt. That will help you to keep your salt balance when you perspire freely. And speaking of perspiration, one of the non-perspiring deodorants under the arms is a necessity in warm weather.

A light diet is a great help in heating the heat. Eat more fruits and vegetables and drink more milk, and leave off the rich, high calorie foods.

And one last word—don't get in an argument! It just makes you hotter!

Bette Davis Stays Friendly, Available

By Sheila Graham.

This will be my last column on Hollywood for some time. I am going to England for six weeks to write about the war. As you read this, I shall be in the air—on my way—in the words of James Joyce—"to encounter for the millionth time the reality of experience."

But before transporting us both from the glittering unreality of Hollywood to the sober factuality of life under war-time conditions, a last look at the inhabitants of the city of celluloid.

Jean Arthur—I never did quite get to understand her—with her overpowering shyness, highlighted with sudden appearances in public, where she'd dress in funny clothes, blacken her face—and love it—until suddenly she would turn and run. . . . Gary Cooper, always kind, always confidential, making you believe you were just about the nicest woman in the world—until you saw him doing the same for the next female. . . . Miriam Hopkins—friendly enough when she kept her appointments or when you met her casually at a party. But Miriam has not yet learned that you should keep dates made with the working press and not wriggle out of them with a pretended headache.

Nelson Eddy and I never quite hit it off, although we began very well. But after our first interview, Nelson denied (a) that he said any such thing, and (b) that he was kidding anyway. . . . Hedy Lamarr—Always friendly, simple, and "home-folks" . . . Clark Gable—Doesn't say much and that little is usually about guns. But he's popular on the lot.

Robert Taylor—I'll always remember Bob because he was the first film star to write me a letter, thanking me for some small thing in the column.

Ginger Rogers—It used to be fun to go on her set and chat with Ginger. For the last year though, she has seemed surrounded by a bodyguard of "no-you-can't-see-her" men, who save her from contact with the outside world. This is not a smart policy. . . . Bette Davis, who is as good, and perhaps a better actress than Ginger, is always available and co-operative.

Pork of Corn-Fed Hogs Is Safest for Consumer

By Dr. William Brady.

Hogs fed raw garbage have been found commonly infected with trichinae larvae, ten times as frequently as hogs fed grain.

Approximately one out of every six persons in the country who eat pork become infected with trichinosis, according to post-mortem findings. Trichinosis has been found less frequently in the rural population than in the urban population, probably because the pork consumed in cities comes largely from swine fed raw garbage, while that consumed in the country comes largely from swine fed grain.

Prevention of trichinosis in the United States is primarily a matter of keeping uncooked pork scraps out of garbage which is to be fed to swine, or processing garbage to destroy trichina before it is fed to swine, or prohibiting the use of raw garbage to feed hogs.

Thorough cooking of all pork, ham and sausage is the best assurance against trichinosis in any circumstance. This kills any trichina larvae present in the meat.

Presence of trichinae in meat can be detected only by microscopic examination, and this is obviously out of the question in the meat inspection by government authorities.

Fresh pork should be cooked until it is white at surface and center; never eaten if it still shows any red color.

When trichinosis is eaten the larvae are set free in the stomach, develop into adult worms in two days, deposit their eggs in the lymph spaces in the intestinal wall, and the eggs hatch into larvae and are carried through the blood stream and distributed to the muscles throughout the body, from eight to 25 days after the trichinosis was eaten. Before this, especially if there has been much diarrhea, the adult worms will have disappeared from the intestine.

First stage, a few days after eating the trichinosis pork, is characterized by pain in belly, nausea, vomiting, sometimes diarrhea. Second stage, mild fever, pain on pressure and movement generally. In mild cases trichinosis is probably mistaken for "grip" or "rheumatism." In heavy infestations the illness may prove fatal.

Diagnostic criteria hitherto have been the peculiar leucocytosis, that is, increase in the number of white blood corpuscles that take a red stain—eosinophilia; and biopsy, microscopic examination of a bit of muscle tissue to discover the trichinae.

Former Atlantan Engages In Defense Work in Hawaii

By SALLY FORTH.

● ● ● IN FAR AWAY Honolulu, Hawaii, an Atlantan is listed among the Honolulu matrons who have answered the call for national defense work and is busy training for the Navy Motor Corps Division. She is Mrs. Rufus G. Thayer, the former Anna Harriett Shevmake, of this city, who has been residing in Hawaii for nearly a year during Captain Thayer's detail with the Pacific fleet.

The work being done by the Honolulu Navy wives is of such magnitude that an entire page was devoted to their activities in a recent issue of the Honolulu Advertiser. The lovely Atlantan is pictured in two of the five pictures on the page, first with the entire group, and then beside a truck learning how to change a tire!

Although civilian women and Army women in Honolulu have been taking the various courses offered by the Red Cross for defense work, it was the Navy unit there which encountered difficulty in getting organized. Now that it is under way, Atlanta feels a special pride in the work being done by Anna Harriett Shevmake Thayer. According to the story in the Hawaiian paper entitled "The Ladies Take a Hand," by E. Schumann, the situation regarding the Navy unit is as follows:

"In the first place, the uncertainties of Navy life make it difficult to count on being in one place long enough to finish all the required training. Despite the mistaken ideas in some circles that Navy wives concentrate on purely social rather than useful occupations, since the emergency, there has been a group of Navy women in each first aid class and the Marines' wives banded together and had one of their own doctors give them all the first aid instruction.

"In the second place, it was necessary to contact someone in authority who has a garage and instructors at his disposal. Captain Freeland Daubin, commanding officer of the submarine base, proved a friend in need and assigned excellent teachers for the mechanics. Due to his interest and the co-operation of the entire submarine base, the Navy unit has just completed its course and all hands passed the exam with flying colors. Last, but not least, the success of the venture depended upon the ready help of the women themselves, pitched in and really studied, giving a great deal of valuable time to extra work."

● ● ● ON AUGUST 7 a romance that began when the couple attended high school together will culminate in marriage, the ceremony to be quietly solemnized in the presence of the immediate families and close friends of the engaged pair.

The bride-elect is tall and slender and has brown eyes and golden brown wavy hair. She was an O. B. X. during her high school days, and later attended the University of Georgia, where she was a member of the Tri Delta sorority.

The groom-elect also completed his education at the University of Georgia, where he was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity.

Their first romance ended several years ago when the future groom moved to another city with his parents, and not until recently did they begin dating again. Cupid, it seems, is a very persistent fellow.

You should identify the couple in at least THREE guesses!

Mrs. Stafford writes "I am taking a voice dictation course every day from 3 to 4 o'clock. When the instructor asked me why I wanted to take it, I told him that I desired to talk like President Roosevelt. Everyone laughed at me and the instructor asked me to talk some more."

Willard Marshall's Home Run Defeats 'Loving Smokies', 3-2

BY JACK TROY

Blow 10-Game Lead

It's possible in professional baseball to lose a 10-game lead in a hurry, and no team knows it any better than Waycross.

A month ago Waycross, which has a working agreement with Atlanta, had a wider lead in the Georgia-Florida League than the Crackers held in the Southern.

Today Waycross has slumped to second place. In one stretch the Bears dropped nine straight games. The Bears hung on, however, to win the right to play the All-Stars and Sunday won the annual attraction, 3 to 0, at Albany.

The Bears still have a very fine chance to win the Georgia-Florida pennant, since they trail Valdosta by only half a game.

So they are much better off than the Memphis Chicks of a few years back. In fact, it was 1939 that the Chicks came roaring down the stretch with an eight-game lead and what apparently was the league's best pitching staff, including present Crackers, Ed Heusser and Allyn Stout, and former Cracker, Herman Besse.

The Chicks went to pieces in the last month of the season and lost the pennant to Chattanooga. It seems like Ed Heusser was the only Chick pitcher to win any games at all in the closing stages of the race.

Besse, unbeatable in the first half of the campaign, couldn't win for losing the last 40 days.

Added Hustle

The only effect a better-than-10-game lead seems to have on the Crackers is to make them hustle all the more.

The Crackers steadfastly have maintained a lead in the Southern League since the season started and today lead by the largest margin of the year.

There is small possibility, indeed, of the Atlanta club emulating its class D partner, Waycross. This is a better balanced Cracker team than the first pennant winner Paul Richards managed in 1938. It has a better defense and steadier pitching.

In losing so relatively few games in the first 100 played, the Crackers have enjoyed unusual success against all teams, and extraordinary success against one in particular.

I refer to those big-hearted visitors from the big Smokies, who remain in the first division in spite of repeated reverses in competition with the Crackers.

All Atlanta should turn out to honor the Knoxville baseball team on Shrine night, which is tonight. The occasion is "Knoxville Appreciation Night."

There is only one regret. And that is that, following tonight's game, the Crackers have only four more games left to play with Knoxville this season.

Crabapple Comet

Bill Brandt, who handles publicity for the National League, points out in a communication that the speed of John Rucker has impressed senior circuit rivals of the New York Giants.

Brandt notes, "If there's another Ty Cobb out of

Chipman Wins, But Scoreless Streak Broken

Outfielder's 11th Homer Gives Young Hurler 11th Victory.

BY JOHNNY BRADBERRY, Assistant Sports Editor.

Junior Marshall's 11th homer gave Bob Chipman his 11th victory of the season and the Crackers their 15th win in 17 starts against our country cousins from Knoxville, Tenn., last night, 3 to 2.

But tonight the Smokies will receive their bit of recognition when the Atlanta Shriners present "Knoxville Appreciation Night" with foot races, throwing contests, etc., after which our cousins will be given another opportunity to lose to the league-leading Crackers.

Chipman and Hal Manders, the ace of the Smoky staff and one of the real aces of the Southern League, hooked up in a neat hurling duel with Manders, quite frankly, having the best of it, in all but the score. He allowed the Crackers only five hits while the Smokies touched Lefty Bob for 10.

GOOD IN PINCHES.

But some bearing down in the pinches plus off-brilliant support let Chipman finish what he started and go home with the bacon, although his long-string of scoreless innings ended when the visitors got two in the sixth.

It was quite a game. Everytime happened. There was a double play started by Bates, an outfielder; a homer which went through the signs and not over them by Marshall, a balk by Chipman, and, to top it all, Catcher Jackson, of Knoxville, suffered a split finger on his throwing hand in the third inning and had to retire from the game.

The Crackers got together their first three hits of the game in the third for two runs, saw Knoxville tie it up in the first of a wild sixth on four hits and a walk, and then won the game on Marshall's line drive which crashed through the lattice work between the second row of signs in right field.

FINISHES STRONG.

From then on Chipman settled down and although touched for hits in each of the last three innings was never in serious danger of being scored upon.

Allyn Stout, the gentleman who set down the All-Stars in his last start in Atlanta, will be on the hill for the leaders for appreciation night tonight. He will be opposed by the veteran Harry Smythe, who whipped the Crackers the two games Knoxville has won this season.

BATES NAILS RUNNER.

Kroner walked to start the Smokies' half of the second. Jackson was safe when Ryan batted his grounder. Then Stewart lifted to Bates, who threw perfectly to third to catch Kroner, completing the double play.

With one out in the third, Gerlach doubled to right. Chipman struck out, but Bates scored. Left, Bates stole second and Mailho doubled to left, scoring him. Ryan lined to Mauldin, ending it with the Crackers leading, 2-0.

Hooks beat out a roller to Ryan to open the Knoxville half of the fourth. Epps singled him to third. Kroner flied to Mailho, whose throw home held Hooks at third. Whaley grounded to Chipman, who threw to Crompton, catching Hooks in a trap and making it two outs. Stewart forced Whaley at second. Glock to Ryan, and Chipman had come out of a bad hole.

In the sixth, with one out, Epps walked and Kroner singled. Whaley's roller to Ryan took a bad hop for a single, loading the bases. Stewart singled to right center and Epps scored, but Kroner was out at the plate. Mailho to Ryan to Crompton. Whaley took third and scored when Chipman balked. Stewart taking second. Metha lined one between third and second which hit Stewart, ending the inning.

Wild Throw to First

Smashes Windshield

Chalk up one costly error against a player on a Negro baseball team here.

Enthusiastically, but without direction, he fired a baseball toward first base during a game Sunday. The ball not only missed the first baseman but it flew out of the ball park and smashed the windshield of a police squad car standing in the street.

The player will replace the broken windshield.

"FLYING BULLDOGS"—These two Georgia football stars, Brookler Blanton, left, and George Poschner, right, are members of the "Flying Bulldogs" Corps at Athens. They are taking C. A. A. instructions. Between them is Instructor Nabors, who is offering a word of advice before he and Poschner take off for a lesson. Note the insignia on the side of the ship.

BARONS WIN PAIR

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 21.—Dutch Mele, Birmingham Baron right fielder, scored the winning runs in both games tonight as the Barons trounced Little Rock, 3 to 2, in an 11-inning tussle and 3 to 1 in the nightcap.

Mele singled in the 11th inning of the first game and was later driven home by Roland Van Harrington's one-bagger to break a 2-2 tie.

With the score again tied 1-1 in the eighth frame of the second match, Mele hit a home run over the rightfield fence to score Gordon Del Savio ahead of him.

Smoky 'Appreciation' Show Is To Start at 7:45 Tonight

Atlanta Shrine's Appreciation Night for Knoxville is tonight, starting at 7:45.

Events of the annual night include an exhibition by the Shrine drill team, the oriental and brass bands and the chanters, and field events involving members of the teams.

Field events will include, (1) pitchers throwing to home plate, (2) outfielders throwing to home plate, (3) catchers throwing to second in barrel, (4) an open event for base runners, and (5) infield relay throwing, best time to win.

One Knoxville baseball writer, Bob Wilson, wired yesterday: "I'll probably be there incognito."

The other Knoxville baseball writer, Tom Anderson, replied: "My overalls are in the laundry and my shoes are being half-soled. Don't see how I could possibly make it. Sorry."

Lovell Blanchard, baseball announcer for WNOX, wired: "Having received no invitation from any Atlanta dignitary I hesitate to appear unannounced."

There seems to be a little difference of opinion there. Mr. Blanchard's presence would be duly noted.

The entire pre-game program will take up only 30 minutes. (The game begins, as usual, at 8:15.)

Harry Smythe, who has won Knoxville's only two games over the Atlanta team, will try to make the third time a charm.

Cobb Club Forced To Feed 'Foreign' Fish at Big Fry

Arnall Attacks Political Strangle on Georgia Wildlife as 'Catfish' Fete 'Mullet' in Losers-Pay.

BY JOHN MARTIN.

MARIETTA, Ga., July 21.—The "Catfish" and the "Mullet" joined up in the same school here tonight and swam in the same barrel of lemonade.

It was at the expense of Captain Lamar Franklin's "Catfish" that Harvey Ward's "Mullet" and all other members of the Cobb County Conservation Club celebrated the climax of a "first" membership drive at a fish fry down by the lake at the Marietta Golf Club.

Approximately 500 fans, hunters and fishermen attended the big fry and heard Attorney General Ellis Arnall assail the political practices that have kept "a withering hand on our wildlife" for so many years.

President J. M. Fowler, of the Cobb club, apologized for the "small" gathering, declaring that a heavy downpour kept many members at home. The club has 450 members and Fowler last night indicated that a "second" campaign would send it over 700.

So it was before members of the state's most active conservation club, a unit of the Georgia Wildlife Federation, that Arnall declared that Georgia needs a new game code embodying laws that conform to those of nature as far as is practicable. He urged members of the club to work toward a wildlife management program directed by "men who know game and fish" and not by persons holding jobs because they vote right."

This was taken as an attack on the politically appointed wildlife rangers, reputed to be the most experienced politicians in the woods of the nation.

Insisting that politics must be whipped with politics, the brilliant young attorney general explained that conservationists of the state must understand that the "best politics is no politics. Which means no politics for personalities, but politics to establish a sensible and useful outdoor program that will bring back hunting and fishing in our great state."

Arnall was judiciously applauded in an orderly and dignified manner, a tribute to the character of the audience.

He was introduced by Otis Brumby, popular editor of the Cobb County Times.

Other speakers included Major Trammell Scott, president of the state federation; Morgan Blake and Jack Troy. They cited the deplorable conditions which now hamper hunting and fishing in Georgia and expressed belief that conditions would be remedied through organized effort.

The federation was represented by Mr. Fowler, W. C. Corrington, M. E. Harkins, Clyde King Jr., Jack Tway, Walter C. Hill, W. H. McNaughton, Raymond Hoagland, Fred Brewer and others from out of town.

The bread was made from Georgia corn, the slaw from Georgia cabbages, the chips from south Georgia potatoes. And the coffee and lemonade were sweetened with Georgia cane sugar.

But the fish—they came from the Tennessee river in Alabama and the Gulf of Mexico in Florida. They were the only "furriners" on an otherwise perfect scene.

Softball Clubs Risk Perfect Marks Tonight

Western Auto and Trust Company of Georgia will risk their undefeated standings in the annual city softball tournament as a feature of tonight's schedule at Henry Grady and Piedmont Park diamonds.

Trust Company will play the winner of the International Harvester-Exposition game, played last night, at 9 o'clock on Henry Grady Field. Western Auto, with two victories and no defeats, battles the winner of the Dittler-C. & S. Bank game, also played last night. This game is scheduled for 7:45 at Henry Grady.

Two other games are scheduled at Piedmont Park. G. E. Supply and The Atlanta Journal will be playing for the right to remain in the tourney at 9 o'clock. Both have lost a game and two defeats is all it takes for a team to be eliminated.

And Four-Square will be battling for its life against Lucas & Jenkins at 7:45 o'clock. Four-Square has lost one game while L. & J. will be playing its first tournament game.

The meet is progressing right along and after this week will be down to the brass knucks stage, where anything can and usually does happen.

The winner of the city meet will represent Georgia in the state tournament in August.

Nines Nabbed On Blue Law

PLANTERSVILLE, Miss., July 21.—(P)—The Plantersville and Winfield, Ala., baseball teams were placed under arrest here yesterday and charged with violating the state Sunday "blue law."

Bond for each player was fixed at $100 and trial set for Thursday.

Before a howling crowd estimated at 14,500 fans who packed all but the grandstand ends of Shibe park, the slim Negro remained undefeated in a year of professional punch-tossing by flooring sturdy Sammy twice in the second round and then going on to hang out a clear-cut out hard-fought verdict.

At the finish, the game little Italian who fights variously out of Washington, Pa., and Louisville, was still on his feet and punching against the 1-to-2 favorite, but he knew he was a beaten warrior.

The Associated Press scorecard gave Robinson seven of the ten rounds.

Gainesville Lads Defeat Royston

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 21.—Gainesville's sandloters trounced Royston, 20 to 0, Monday afternoon at Buford in the deciding game of their series. Gainesville won the first game, 6 to 5, here last Tuesday, and the second resulted in a 3-to-3 tie.

G. Patton hurled airtight ball for Gainesville, yielding only three hits as his teammates clouted two Royston pitchers. The next opponent for the locals will be decided in the regional tournament now in progress.

Dodgers Lose To Pirates, 8-3 In Only Game

Brooklyn's Lead Over Idle Cards Is Cut to One Game.

BROOKLYN, July 21.—(P)—The faltering Brooklyn Dodgers were walloped again today by the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8 to 3, and lost another half game of their National League lead.

In the only game of the day in the major leagues, the Dodgers were held in check effectively if not impressively by Lefty Kintzlerman and absorbed their fourth licking in five games. As a result they headed out on another western invasion tonight with a slender one game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Heintzelman was tapped for ten hits, but he managed to keep the damage to a minimum, while his teammates raided four Brooklyn pitchers for 11 safeties, including home runs by Elbie Fletcher and Vince DiMaggio.

Pittsburgh waded into Newt Kimball in the third for three runs on a walk, a single by Lee Handley, a triple by Arky Vaughan and a double by Bob Elliott. Vito Tamulis was rushed in and gave two passes and then Mace Brown was summoned to retire his former teammates with the bases loaded.

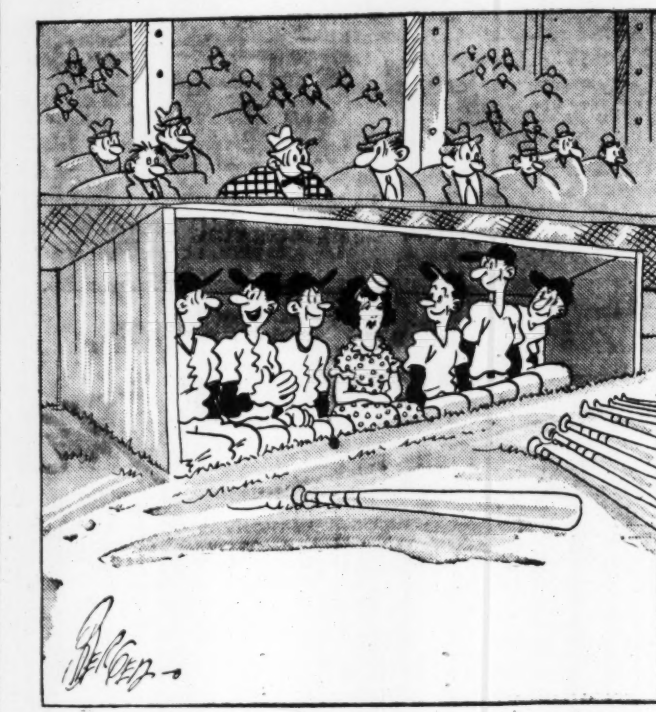

In the fifth Elliott singled and Elbie Fletcher smashed a home run, his ninth of the year, over the right-field scoreboard. In the sixth a walk, a hit batsman and a single by Marjorie Van Robays added another tally off Brown and in the ninth DiMaggio crowned his eleventh round-tripper of the year after Van Robays had singled off Kemp Wicker.

JONES VS. HAGEN.

The suggested battle between Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen at Detroit next month for the U. S. O. recalls their first meeting in a championship test. This happened 21 years ago over the testing Inverness course at Toledo. This was Hagen's ninth U. S. Open and it was Jones's debut year.

Hagen was the defending champion from his victory at Braeburn the year before when he topped Mike Brady in the playoff. Bobby was then only 18 years old and the Haig was close to 30.

Few believed at that time that some distant date that for the next ten years, until the Georgian retired, the great Haig would have to take southern dust in eight of the ten United States Opens played.

The Haig got his revenge in match play one winter in Florida by a crushing margin, but he could never quite keep pace with the East Lake Express when an Open arrived.

Jones and Vardon

Bobby had the good fortune that year at Inverness to be paired with Harry Vardon, the matchless stylist.

This was the championship that Vardon, in his fiftieth year, had packed away until a terrific thunderstorm, with a roistering wind attached, killed his chance through the last six holes when he went seven over par.

I followed Vardon most of the way in that championship and saw him play 30 consecutive holes in even par—no bird-les, no bogies. And then the storm broke against his half-century of years and his big lead vanished.

"I could have done better," he told me later, "if I had thrown my clubs away and kicked the ball around with my boot."

Even with this nightmare finish he was only a stroke away from Ted Ray's winning mark. It was the Old Master's last stand, after landing the same Open 20 years before.

Jones, Vardon, Hagen

Comparisons are always replete with pine knots and snails, and this is what takes place when you begin comparing the star trio.

Of the three I should say that Harry Vardon was the most consistent from tee to green, but don't forget he was up against two of the greatest tournament putters that ever heard the music of the tin cup as the ball drops in.

Jones could match Vardon with the woods, for Bob has always been a magnificent model with driver, brassie or spoon. But his iron play lacked the deadly consistency of the English veteran who had a surer, crisper style of handling irons.

Hagen, a great golfer with any club, was still just a trifle shy on the mechanical side against these two swinging brilliants. But Hagen had the edge on everyone when it came to the competitive side where his almost complete lack of the main poisoner, was something to think about. His veins ran ice water and his nerves were raw steel. And he had all the answers that psychology might ask.

If Harry Vardon could have used the putting blade in either Jones or Hagen he would have been unbeatable. He looked and felt awkward on the greens, especially in his later years. But he was deadly consistent from the tee and through the fairway, and the beauty of his swing was something to watch.

To Vardon a straight line was always the shortest distance between two points.

The Direct Retort

There is one story from that championship Bobby Jones always remembers—and tells with a dry grin.

You can imagine the awe, the reverence and the nervousness an 18-year-old kid in his first National Open championship would feel in being paired with the great Vardon, whose mastery then covered 25 years.

"We were coming to the seventh hole," Bob says, "a hole that calls for a drive and a short pitch or chip. We both hit two fine drives over the trees, and Vardon played a fine short pitch to the pin. In attempting to cut my pitch and hold the hard green I half-topped it. The ball skittered across the carpet and wound up in a bunker on the back side.

"Naturally I was considerable embarrassed. So I just happened to say, 'Mr. Vardon, did you ever see a worse shot than that?'"

"I'll admit his reply carried something of a jolt. 'Never did,' was all he said."

Jones and Hagen Again
It would be something to see Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen meeting again, if the Haig could get back part of his old game.

Bobby lately has been playing much better golf than his old rival. He is younger and in better physical shape. Outside of competition he is hitting the

Brooklyn Star Has Lost Last Three Battles

Georgian Says His Arm Feels Okay and He Seems to Have Stuff.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

BROOKLYN, July 21.—(P)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' "winning pitchers" aren't winning and great is the consternation in Flatbush.

No one is more discouraged than Whitlow Wyatt, who up until the all-star game at Detroit was recognized as the year's best pitcher in the National League. Since then he hasn't won a game and has been beaten three times.

"I don't know what is wrong," he confessed on the bench today. "My arm feels all right and I seem to have my stuff. The other night against the Cardinals I was pitching to spots and in the fifth inning when they started hitting, I put three balls exactly where I wanted them and they banged everyone."

The reason Wyatt is so concerned by his sudden slip is easily understandable. He is 31 years old, partly bald, and has had three previous chances with big league clubs. This season looked like his turn to strike pay dirt.

"They just pay off on the ones you win," he explained, "and I figure you get a chance to win only so many. You can just get in a certain number of games and, if you don't win while you're out there, then that's an opportunity lost."

SHOULD HAVE 17.

"The way I figure it, I ought to have won 17 games now, with any kind of baseball luck. For one thing we haven't been able to get very many runs when I've been out there. Look at Feller. He had a little let-down, but he was winning games 9 to 7 and scores like that."

"I lost one at St. Louis 1-0 and one to Cincinnati 3-2 and I'm not counting that 16-inning game."

The 16-inning game he referred to went 0-0 for nine stanzas and then in the tenth Wyatt himself hit a home run. But his stomach was upset and he couldn't return to the mound. Hugh Casey took over, let the Reds tie the score and then got credit for Brooklyn's eventual victory.

NEVER FELT BETTER.

He said today his arm did not pain him, however, and that it never felt better than it did last Wednesday night when the Cardinals shelled him out in the fifth.

That night he fanned six men and allowed no hits in the first four innings. Yesterday, in losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates, he struck out six in the first three innings. The heavy strain of working on small margins may be taking its toll. He has worked 184 innings this season, a total exceeded in the major leagues only by Feller.

The Dodgers also are worried about Kirby Higbe, who, like Wyatt, has won 13 games and borne a large share of the burden.

He was batted out of the box by the Cardinals last Friday and Sunday was taken to a hospital to be treated for an unruled appendix. After 24 hours of observation doctors decided no operation would be necessary for the present, at least, and gave him permission to accompany the club on its western invasion starting tonight.

Manager Leo Durocher, however, said he would not be used before the team reaches Pittsburgh, second stop on the tour.

The Metropolitan Women Golfers will compete tomorrow on the Candler Park course for divisional prizes. Mrs. Max Metzger will have charge of the events and lady golfers in and around Atlanta are invited to enter the matches.

Stockbridge Softball 10 Beats America Fore, 5-4

Stockbridge bested H. D. McLean's America Fore ten by a 5-to-4 count at Warren Field, a City League softball game. Joe Hammock was the winning hurler despite the fact he gave up one more hit than Lawson for the losers. Pistolina Class clipped Atlanta Woolen Mills, 13 to 6, by shoving across seven runs in the fifth inning. Jackson had three for three in this game.

ball almost as well as he ever did.

The Haig's game lately hasn't been any too hot. But with a few turns on the practice plains and a few more hours of sleep, he could still get ready for a good test.

For those who have followed golf there would be a lot of memories trailing along with this pair, exchanging shots.

All in all, this U. S. O. Detroit test with the Bobby Jones squad facing the Ryder cup platoon promises to be one of the best competitions of a busy summer.

Dorothy Kirby In Good Form For Qualifying

Wet Grounds Slow Down Course at Asheville; Cothran Out.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.
BILTMORE FOREST CLUB, ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 21.—It looked and felt good to be back in Asheville again. I always look forward to this tournament.

Last night it was cool enough up here for a light coat and you can certainly sleep in this mountain air.

I got here late yesterday afternoon and only played seven holes. It has been raining for three weeks and so the fairways are very heavy, and naturally the course is playing unusually slow.

The greens are not very fast, which might prove to be a help since bent grass is usually slick as can be.

The field on hand is very good. Frances Olsen, from Jacksonville, is here. Eileen Stubb from Augusta; Louise Suggs and Caroline Dykes from Columbus.

TEN FROM ATLANTA.
There is really a crowd entered from Atlanta. About ten in all. From what I can gather, Jane Cothran is not going to be here. She hurt her hand and is not able to hit a golf ball. It doesn't seem right not to have Jane around, since this seems to be her golf course.

This morning Caroline Dykes and I played Louise Suggs and Virginia Vines. We played fairly well. In fact, I would like very much to have my score for the qualifying tomorrow. I was out in 37 and back in 37 for a 74.

I'll bet I will be crying for that tomorrow. Louise was not hitting her shots as well as she would have liked, so she took out for the practice tee this afternoon. The course is well trapped and you have to be very straight on the shot to the green.

LIKE BOMB HOLES.
After Caroline had been in practically all of the traps this morning she came to the conclusion that Hitler had already been in this part of the country, for the traps were as large as bomb holes. Anyway, this was her description of the course.

This afternoon several of us took time off and went over to the Biltmore Estate, and through the dairy, and went up eating two helpings of Biltmore ice cream, and was it good! I think we will take in a picture show tonight and be in good form in the morning. I don't care for these qualifying rounds and will be glad to get it over with. Last year was fortunate enough to win the medal with a 76, but this is another year, so one never knows.

Techwood Bumps DeKalb Barons, 5-2

The Techwood Athletics climbed over the listless DeKalb Barons yesterday to win a sandlot game, 5 to 2, in the 10th inning. Hal Crow, of the Athletics, hit three for five, and winning pitcher Henry Kalb's double gave him two out of four.

Young and Belser were the Barons' leading batters, each getting two for four.

ries to the five-man football line, with most of the strength in the secondary but ready to "come in and sock anywhere."

"The Russians have destroyed a lot of tanks by letting them get through and then hitting them from the side or rear," he continued. "That's just a football mousetrapp."

"Even their plans of campaign look like some team's football schedules. The Germans took on a lot of small countries first before tackling the big ones."

"The Kaiser's men were supposed to have learned things about supply and encampments from American circuses."

Wheel of Fortune

Twenty-nine-year-old Hank Greenberg has caught it all around since the famous controversy which resulted in his being inducted into the Army.

A short time after his induction, a rule was passed whereby most any draftee could obtain 60 days deferment. This meant approximately $18,000 in salary to Greenberg (and no telling how many dollars to the Detroit club).

Greenberg hadn't been in uniform two months before men 28 and over were automatically deferred. To top it all off, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis refused permission to present Greenberg with the Most Valuable Player Award he won in 1940, during the recent major league All-Star game.

Melio Bettina, Burman Head Show Tonight

Chick Meehan Stages Second Card in Opposition to Jacobs.

By JACK CUDDY.
United Press Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, July 21.—(UP)—Chick Meehan stages his second boxing show in opposition to Mike Jacobs' "monopoly" tomorrow night at Ebbets Field, featuring a 10-round bout between heavyweights Melio Bettina and Red Burman.

Meehan, former football coach at New York U. and Manhattan, expects to make money tomorrow night because he has big names on his card. He lost about $7,000 with his first show two weeks ago when he had no big-timers to trot out.

The Bettina-Burman match shapes up as a good fight, and it is supported by two other 10-round bouts in which well-known heavyweights appear: Lee Savold vs. Solly Krieger and Pat Comiskey vs. Henry Cooper.

UNBEATEN AS HEAVY.
In the feature brawl, southpaw Bettina, of Beacon, N. Y., is trying to use Burman, of Baltimore—Jack Dempsey's protégé—as a stepping stone to a winter title fight with Joe Louis. Bettina, former light heavyweight champion, is unbeaten as a heavyweight. He defeated 23 big fellows, knocking out 17 of them. If he can add Baltimore Red to his list tomorrow night, mauling Melio then he can demand another tilt with Billy Conn, whom he gave two great fights in 1939. Victory over Conn would clinch a winter match with Louis, if Bomber Joe is still champion.

Bettina is confident he can beat Conn now—as well as Burman—because he claims he is much stronger as a heavyweight than as a light heavy. Paring down to the 175-pound limit weakened him so that he tired near the end of every fight, he explained.

BURMAN FAVORED.
However, betting men do not share Bettina's confidence. They have made Burman the favorite at 6-5. The Baltimore Irishman, scaling about 195, will have a 10-pound advantage. Moreover, Burman's bobbing and weaving style is almost as awkward for an opponent as Bettina's southpaw technique. Burman is rugged and, having been kayoed only once by Joe Louis last January. And he is a great body puncher.

Two other heavies on tomorrow night's card also have designs on Louis—Savold, of Des Moines, and Comiskey, of Paterson, N. J., but their opponents are not as formidable as Burman.

Texas Team Whips Shoemakers, 5 to 1

BAYTOWN, Texas, July 21.—Burford's Shoemakers dropped a 5-1 decision to the Baytown club here this afternoon as the Texas team jumped on Red Oliver for four runs in the third inning.

Mercer Harris paced the Buford club with two doubles and a single. Gerald McQuig had a double and a single.

Buford will play the Waco (Texas) nine Tuesday night in Waco. Buford 100,000-100-1-3-7-1; Waco 100,000-100-1-3-7-3.

Red Kreitz, Ex-Chicago Catcher, Dies in Game

PORTLAND, Ore., July 21.—(AP) Ralph Wesley "Red" Kreitz, 55, Chicago White Sox catcher from 1910 to 1912, hit a single in an Old-Timers' Baseball Association game Sunday and dashed for first base.

Halfway there he collapsed. A doctor pronounced him dead of a heart attack a few moments later. Kreitz had lived at Hillsboro, Ore., in recent years.

pered by Captain Johnson Whitaker.

This catch indicates that the big gamesters at last have decided to take bait. Earlier excursions into large shallow bays failed to produce a single strike. Maybe tarpon time has come to Georgia and news of the first catch likely will be the signal for a general invasion of coastal waters this week and next.

$55,000,000 Rise in Loans Is Noted

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board reported today that banks in 101 leading cities had increased their commercial, industrial and agricultural loans by $55,000,000, to a total of $5,988,000,000, in the week ended July 16.

The total of business loans, which have been rising steadily as a result of the defense program, was $1,524,000,000 higher than a year ago.

The board said check transactions picked up again last week as a result of midmonth business. In 274 leading cities, bank deposits in the week ended July 16 totaled $10,616,000,000 compared with $8,476,000,000 in the preceding week, which represented a severe slump from the holiday-swollen week before that when $12,565,000,000 of checks were cashed.

Paraguayan President's Wife, Son To Go Home

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Dolores Morinigo, wife of the Paraguayan President, will leave this week for Asuncion with her young son who has been undergoing infantile paralysis treatments at the Warm Springs (Ga.) Foundation.

Acting Secretary Sumner Welles said he was informed the youngster had shown great improvement.

Steel Company House Body's Dispute Settled Stand on Tax At Birmingham File Reaffirmed

Texas Power Controversy Appears Headed for Mediation.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The National Defense Mediation Board announced settlement today of two threatened strikes at the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Birmingham, Ala. Terms of the agreements were withheld pending their presentation to members of the two unions involved, the CIO Office and Technical Workers, and AFL Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Frank Graham, vice chairman of the board, and head of the panel which has conferred on the case with company and union officials here since Friday, said the dispute affected about 1,000 electrical workers and 1,200 office workers.

The company has defense orders for steel and steel products. Meanwhile, differences between the Gulf States Utilities Company, of Beaumont, Texas, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) over collective bargaining in the company's Louisiana plants apparently were headed for the National Mediation Board.

After repeated conferences with management and union officials, Howard Colvin, southern regional director of the Labor Department, said the company had agreed to a settlement of the dispute, but declined to recognize the AFL union, whose members, repairmen and linemen, went on a strike. The plants still are operating.

The company furnishes power to important defense industries in Louisiana.

Ammunition Plant Contract Awarded

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The War Department today awarded a $21,291,768 contract to Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., New York, to design and construct, train the key personnel and operate an ammunition loading plant at Jacksonville, Ark.

The department estimated that $6,040,000 would be required for machinery and equipment.

The plant, to be designated the Arkansas Ordnance Plant, will load fuse, booster, primers, detonators, bombs and percussion elements.

The department also announced award of contracts for construction of the basic flying school at Greenville, Miss., at an estimated cost of $4,400,680.

Steel Company House Body's Dispute Settled Stand on Tax At Birmingham File Reaffirmed

Texas Power Controversy Appears Headed for Mediation.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The National Defense Mediation Board announced settlement today of two threatened strikes at the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Birmingham, Ala. Terms of the agreements were withheld pending their presentation to members of the two unions involved, the CIO Office and Technical Workers, and AFL Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Frank Graham, vice chairman of the board, and head of the panel which has conferred on the case with company and union officials here since Friday, said the dispute affected about 1,000 electrical workers and 1,200 office workers.

The company has defense orders for steel and steel products. Meanwhile, differences between the Gulf States Utilities Company, of Beaumont, Texas, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) over collective bargaining in the company's Louisiana plants apparently were headed for the National Mediation Board.

After repeated conferences with management and union officials, Howard Colvin, southern regional director of the Labor Department, said the company had agreed to a settlement of the dispute, but declined to recognize the AFL union, whose members, repairmen and linemen, went on a strike. The plants still are operating.

The company furnishes power to important defense industries in Louisiana.

Ammunition Plant Contract Awarded

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The War Department today awarded a $21,291,768 contract to Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., New York, to design and construct, train the key personnel and operate an ammunition loading plant at Jacksonville, Ark.

The department estimated that $6,040,000 would be required for machinery and equipment.

The plant, to be designated the Arkansas Ordnance Plant, will load fuse, booster, primers, detonators, bombs and percussion elements.

The department also announced award of contracts for construction of the basic flying school at Greenville, Miss., at an estimated cost of $4,400,680.
